New Sloan Report on Forests Calls For:

VAST VICTORIA RESEARCH CENTRE

Major Points Listed

The provincial government has been urged to limit the life of all future forest management licences to a maximum of 21 years.

This recommendation highlights Chief Justice Gordon Sloan's 888-page report on the Royal Commission into all aspects of B.C.'s $600,000,000-a-year forest industry.

Forests Minister Ray Williston released the report yesterday.

CONTROL CLAUSE

At present forest management licences are awarded "in perpetuity" or for all time. The new time limit was recommended, however, so that the public would have some evidence of government control over the system.

After 21 years the licence would be reviewed and could then be renewed subject to negotiation of new terms and conditions, it was stated.

IT WORKS

Chief Justice Sloan, who spent 12 months drawing up the report, defended the forest management licence system which he devised during his first probe of the forest industry 10 years ago. He said that while the system was not perfect it did work.

Among other recommendations were these:

BUY E & N BELT

The government purchase the E & N belt timber on Vancouver Island for $108,000,000, to be paid over a 50-year period.

The 18 forest management licence applications that have been approved subject to approval of working plans and

New Solarium Rises at Gordon Head

Beginning to take shape is the new 64-bed Queen Alexandra Solarium on Finnerty Road at Gordon Head. The $878,790 building will replace the old Solarium at Mill Bay. The foundations in the foreground will be the service and maintenance building. The structure in the centre will be the two-storey "core" of the building. —(Colonist photo by Bud Kinsman.)

Makeshift Policy Hit

Prompt establishment of a forest research centre near Victoria and a drastic increase in forest research has been called for by Chief Justice Sloan.

In a hard-hitting passage in his report, strongly critical of official neglect of forest research, the chief justice wrote:

INTERESTS IN JEOPARDY

"I feel sure that if the shareholders of a large company which controlled . . . millions of acres of forested land of incalculable . . . value were advised that the company's research division was being starved for funds and as a consequence was 'woefully inadequate,' they would consider their interests were being seriously jeopardized."

The chief justice noted bitterly that the amount of money devoted to research had been steadily diminishing instead of increasing (as he had recommended in 1945) in relation to forest revenue.

PITTANCE

He assailed the pittance to which forest research was budgeted and referred to the "makeshift" research headquarters in Victoria . . . "formerly a private residence."

"There is an undoubted immediate need for proper permanent office and laboratory accommodation," the chief justice declared, calling for establishment of the new Victoria research centre.

LARGE PLANT NEEDED

He said the Victoria centre should embody sufficient acreage to enable office quarters to be combined with other essential facilities, including greenhouses, lath-house, planting-out areas, workshop and storage facilities.

He said that the office accommodation should include a properly equipped laboratory and a well-stocked library.

He also calls for selecting areas throughout the province to be set aside for research and experimentation. These sites should include every type of forest growth, he said.

B.C. HUMBLED

He cites figures to show that amounts spent for research elsewhere dwarf the percentages spent in B.C.

He pointed out that he had called in his last report for an immediate increase in forest research and stressed that his latest investigation had been hampered by lack of action by succeeding governments.

Chief Architect

DR. C. D. ORCHARD

Described as the chief architect of B.C.'s sustained yield forest policy was Dr. C. D. Orchard, province's chief forester and deputy minister. Chief Justice Sloan says Dr. Orchard was the moving spirit behind the adoption of forest management legislation in B.C. and said in spite of its shortcomings it meets the main requirement: "It works." Dr. Orchard has earned a special place in the history of B.C. forest development, the chief justice wrote.

Queen's Speech from Throne To Be 'Loaded' with Policy

WINNIPEG (CP)—The speech from the Throne to be read by the Queen at the opening of Parliament will be loaded with pronouncements of policy by the Progressive Conservative government, Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated Thursday.

Mr. Diefenbaker, in a press conference held while his plane stopped here for refuelling, turned aside most questions on government policy by saying they will be covered in the throne speech.

CALGARY (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said on arrival here Thursday night his government will propose a raise in old-age pensions at the forthcoming session of parliament.

Asked about reports that the Queen Mother might become the next governor-general of Canada, Mr. Diefenbaker said Canada has given "no consideration whatsoever to the identity of the successor of the present governor-general.

New senators will be appointed before the opening of Parliament Oct. 14, he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government has "never even thought" of a new election.

Saanich Youths Warned

Saanich police warned last night that some youngsters "looking for excitement" will find more than that if they continue placing ammunition on railway tracks.

Several youngsters have found .45 automatic and .303-calibre ammunition and are laying it on the tracks in the area of the Boleskine Bridge, a spokesman said.

"This is highly dangerous. In some cases the ammunition has backfired when the train runs over it," the officer said. "Or, the fired slug could hurt or kill someone.

"We don't know where the ammunition has come from. However, youngsters who have any should turn it over to the police department, or to their parents or school teachers, who in turn should call the police department."

HON. RAY WILLISTON

ARTHUR LAING

Recommendations contained in the Sloan report show the government is "obviously under fire," in the opinion of Liberal leader Arthur Laing.

GORDON GIBSON

Gordon Gibson, who resigned his seat over Social Credit forest policies, had a terse comment: "Any comment I would make would be libellous."

IWA Chief Likes Sloan Report

PORTLAND (CP)—Labor's reaction to the long-awaited Sloan forestry report was favorable.

Joe Morris, district president of the union vitally concerned—the 30,000-strong International Woodworkers of America—said the report should go a long way to setting up a fairly managed and prosperous industry.

Mr. Morris was here attending an IWA international board meeting.

FIRST GLANCE

He stressed in an interview that he had no chance to study the report, and that a full statement will be issued later. But on the basis of what he was told about it he approved:

The idea of a forestry industry provincial advisory council; IWA participation in such a body; limitation of forest management tenure to 21 years; the proposal that the question of who gets forest management licences should be subject to a more positive policy of selection.

WE ASKED FOR IT

"The establishment of an advisory council was one of the main items in our brief to the commission," said the union leader. "It would mean public participation in control of the forests, and in particular labor would have a definite voice in what is done. We are glad that the chief justice hasn't proposed a full-time, independent control set-up along the lines of the B.C. Power Commission. This way, the public gets into things."

LIKES E & N MOVE

The IWA chief welcomed Chief Justice Sloan's suggestion that the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway forest land be purchased.

As for the proposal that there should be a probe of the forest industry every 10 years—"I don't know about the 10 years as such, but there should certainly be periodic checks."

"And the raising of forest service salaries would ensure that the province gets the best people in a vital industry. We're all in favor of it."

End to Atom Bomb Tests Urged by Red Scientists

TORONTO (BUP)—A leading Russian seismologist threw scientific caution to the winds and told a news conference he and most Soviet scientists had urged their government to end atomic bomb tests.

Speaking excellent English with only occasional help from an interpreter, Dr. V. V. Belousov, head of the Department of Geo-Dynamics of the Institute of Physics of the Earth, expounded his views with great emphasis and vigor.

Asked what had been his government's reaction to the stand, Belousov replied "our government's answer was the same as it has been many times before—that it is entirely opposed to these tests."

Rocks Travel East; Eyes on Minto Cup

WINNIPEG — Victoria's Junior Shamrocks, newly-crowned Western Canada junior lacrosse champions, headed east from here this morning, their heads in the clouds and their eyes on the Minto Cup.

"At first, they could hardly believe it," a jubilant coach Archie Browning exclaimed. "They worked so hard for this title, and now that they've got it all they think about is bringing back the Canadian championship."

"We can do it, too," asserted Browning. "Everybody is in good shape and better spirits, and this is by far the best team Victoria has ever had."

The young Rocks, who won the western title by defeating Winnipeg Combines, 14-8, last night, play either Peterborough or Brampton in a best-of-five Minto Cup Canadian championship series. (See story on page 10.)

Hotel Dispute Near Accord

Management and union representatives of 450 employees of the Empress Hotel were still thrashing out their wage dispute early this morning.

The negotiation meeting was on the eve of a government-supervised strike vote scheduled for today.

It is believed that only a matter of wage adjustments for certain jobs, amounting to about $7,500, separated the two sides from agreement.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

(Reprinted from Nov. 24, 1956)

A TELEPHONE girl was about to enter the ladies' washroom when she screamed with horror and backed away. People crowded to see what was wrong.

"There's a man in there!" she gasped.

Someone opened the door, and sure enough, there stood a genial, urbane-looking bearded fellow, impeccably dressed and carrying a briefcase. Clearly he didn't feel self-conscious about being caught lurking in a ladies' powder-room. When he explained his presence there, the explanation would be correct and logical.

On his briefcase was engraved one word: "Schweppes." This was Commander Whitehead, ambassador for a British soft-drink firm. He seemed on the point of uttering a cheerful, well-bred greeting. But he didn't move—for a good reason.

He was made of cardboard. The man in the ladies' room wasn't the commander himself, but a life-sized effigy in natural color, borrowed from a store where it had been used to promote the sale of Commander Whitehead's product.

A group of conspirators had persuaded a girl to carry the figure into the washroom and place it in a position to stare full in the face of anyone entering.

After this episode, the commander kept appearing in odd places. The news editor, conscious of a shape behind him, turned to see the Whitehead countenance bristling six inches from his ear.

Next, the face showed above a partition, wearing a cloth cap. For the best part of a day the cardboard commander occupied a telephone booth. People tried to go in, mumbled, "Excuse me," and withdrew, without ever knowing they had apologized to a dummy.

There was an undertone of schoolboy frivolity in the office for some time, as groups of jokers devised new ways for the cardboard commander to ambush people.

The presence of Commander Whitehead drew attention to a seeming difference between British and North American advertising methods. Humorous advertisements in newspapers, magazines and billboards are more common in Britain than they are on this continent.

British advertisers are skilled at the light-hearted, tongue-in-cheek method. They seem to be saying: "This is all in fun, but why don't you buy our product? It isn't bad stuff. And if you buy it, we'll be able to keep entertaining you with this kind of nonsense."

North American advertisers try more earnestly to induce worry, fear and discontent. The advertisers seek to bully people into the belief that if they don't buy Smarm for the hair, Breakabone Wax for the floor or Sweetreek for the armpits, the neighbors will shun them as pariahs.

It's true that there is an element of snob appeal in the Commander Whitehead campaign. We are supposed to feel that if this soft-drink has earned the approval of such a distinguished-looking character, it should be just the thing for the likes of us. The appeal is made in a subtle and disarming way, so that only the toughest-minded people can sneer at it.

CHIEF JUSTICE GORDON SLOAN
. . . recommends sweeping changes

Cabinet Irate Over News Leak

'Someone Will Hang!'

The provincial government is conducting a full-scale investigation in an attempt to discover how a Vancouver newspaper obtained an advance copy of the top-secret Sloan report.

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston ordered the probe yesterday following publication of the long-awaited report in the Vancouver Sun six days ahead of its official release date.

It was strictly a case of history repeating itself.

In 1946, Chief Justice Gordon McG. Sloan's report on his first royal commission on the forest industry was published ahead of time in the now-defunct Vancouver News-Herald.

This time the Sun got it.

Government spokesmen said yesterday that "someone is going to be hanged" for leaking the report to the newspaper.

Although the report had been in the hands of the Queen's Printer for some weeks the first copies were not presented to the government by Chief Justice Sloan until last Tuesday. For the past two days forest service experts have been studying the report.

Mr. Williston told reporters in the legislative press gallery Wednesday that each would be given a copy of the report today to study and digest but that it could not be published until next Wednesday.

Yesterday the Sun printed details of the report.

Mr. Williston released the report to all papers yesterday afternoon as a result of the Sun story.

"I had my feet shot out from under me," Mr. Williston said.

"This incident has put the needle on a certain number of people who have been clearing themselves rapidly today," said the minister. "If they don't, they're out!"

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black said "every single, solitary copy of the report has been accounted for."

The president and most members of the legislative press gallery contended that no confidence had been broken because the gallery had not been issued copies of the report and had therefore given no undertaking not to release it.

Sidelights on the Sloan Report

Now We're in 'The Hemlock Age'

This province is passing out of the Douglas fir era into the hemlock age.

"We can never recreate our ancient and giant Douglas firs, upon which our dominant position in the world lumber market was founded," the Sloan report said. "After our mature Douglas fir forests are cut out, hemlock should occupy the dominant position in our forest economy."

Chief Justice Gordon Sloan said any attempt to keep B.C.'s forest predominantly fir was "an outmoded uneconomic philosophy based largely on sentiment."

He urged that the B.C. Forest Service grow hemlock seedlings in its nurseries for reforestation purposes.

"We are now close to, if not actually in, the hemlock age and we must govern our thinking and our policies accordingly," the report stated.

You could hardly term the Sloan report on forestry lavishly illustrated but it was not without pictorial appeal.

In one volume there was a photograph of four log ends, the other contained a picture of a field full of cows.

Copies of the report can be obtained from the Queen's Printer for $5.25.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner described the forestry report by Chief Justice Gordon Sloan as a "monumental and encyclopedic work, one which will probably stand as a text on forestry practices."

Mr. Bonner said the report "broadly confirms the validity of past policies on forestry by the government," and at the same time makes "extremely valuable suggestions on a tremendously complex subject."

He said the government feels the report is a tremendous contribution and that the people of B.C. owe a great debt to the chief justice for his arduous and brilliant study.

British Columbia's forest industry employs about 60,000 people with an annual payroll of $200,000,000, the report states.

The industry provides the provincial government each year with $85,000,000 — about one-third of its total revenue—through sales tax, stumpage, royalties and other payments.

In addition it pays $112,000,000 a year in federal taxes.

The provincial government puts back about a third of its forest revenue into the industry. Ottawa returns less than one per cent.

There is virtually no chance of a special fall session of the legislature to draft new forestry legislation recommended in the Sloan report.

Observers believe the task of drafting the legislation would take until early December at the earliest even if the job was started immediately.

B.C.'s reforestation program should be four times larger than it is at present, the chief justice says.

He recommended a yearly replanting program of 48,000 acres instead of the present 12,000 acres and says part of the cost should be borne by the federal government.

"It seems to me the forest service should not evade its responsibility of maintaining crown forest land . . . We are trustees of our forest wealth and it seems to me that if the government continues to be influenced unduly by the profit motive it is inevitable we will pass on to future generations an impaired and diminished forest resource."

An official of Alaska Pine and Cellulose Ltd., which has applied for a management licence in the Jordan River area, said he could make no comment on the report until it had been studied.

Forest management licences should be awarded to the major owner of private timber within an area suitable for management as a sustained-yield unit, the Sloan report recommends.

"This priority should . . . be absolute if the major owner contributes a volume of timber equal to one half or more of the volume of Crown timber within the proposed licence area," the report stated.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

New Report Seeks Sweeping Changes

three other applications be awarded.

No other FMLs be approved for a five-year period.

The establishment of a permanent forestry advisory council.

And that legislation be framed to "stamp out" blackmail now prevalent in timber auctions.

The provincial government was criticized in the report for a lack of any general policy regarding the granting of forest management licences and it was recommended that a set of rules be established under which future licences could be granted.

Chief Justice Sloan noted that 18 applications for forest management licences had been awarded by the government subject to the approval of working plans.

Three other applications which had won only preliminary approval were from Crown Zellerbach, Powell River Company, and Canadian Forest Products.

He recommended that these 21 licences now be awarded.

All other applications should be discouraged for at least five years, the report stated, to enable a thorough survey to be made of all present licences.

Referring to evidence of "blackmail" at timber auctions given by witnesses at the hearings Chief Justice Sloan said he was a little skeptical that the practice was prevalent throughout the province.

There had been complaints, however, that loggers who were dependent on getting certain tracts of timber had to buy off other operators who threatened to bid up the price of the timber.

He recommended that legislation be drafted to put an end to this practice.

As far as the advisory council is concerned the report showed the chief justice was opposed to the establishment of a permanent, independent commission on the grounds that it would not have the most beneficial effects.

An advisory council however would fill the needs for a channel of official communications from that group of persons who were qualified to advise the government on matters of forest policy.

The report insisted that no new taxes be imposed on the forest industry and urged also that the four-year-old forest land tax of one per cent be abolished.

Chief Justice Sloan said competition from Eastern Canada and the southern U.S. and loss of markets in the United Kingdom have proven that B.C.'s economy is dependent entirely on world conditions over which the provincial government had no control.

The report made no recommendations for an upward or downward revision of stumpage rates but did recommend the abolition of the eight separate stumpage zones on the coast.

This was one of the most controversial issues of the hearings.

Sink Debate Starts Again

The rooming-house sinks debate started up again in city council yesterday, with no significant results.

Council received letters from the sanitary inspector and the plumbing inspector taking exception to statements made in a critical letter from Herbert Watson, president of the Victoria branch of the Vancouver Island Ratepayers' Association.

Ald. J. Donald Smith took the opportunity to ask Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson, health committee chairman, "how well in hand" the sink situation was, and the argument began again.

Ald. Elmer McEwen produced a letter from the Zoning Board of Appeal indicating that a woman who wanted to install a sink in compliance with the law found her rooming-house was in a single-family zone, and that she was required to make numerous changes to the satisfaction of equally numerous city inspectors.

"I just want to point out the difficult position of people when they want to do one simple little thing," he said. "The house is as clean as can be. . . . None of these things is unreasonable; but to a person without money, they are all unreasonable."

Only thing to do, he maintained, was to make the sink-in-every-cooking-room requirement effective at a future date, so that existing rooming-houses would not be affected.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said that this information illustrated the problem—"If council could bring in a bylaw that if a person wants one thing done, they are not going to have a platoon of inspectors descend on them. . . ."

Ald. Wilson said she could see, too, that "it makes elderly people, especially, fearful when they think inspectors are going to descend on them."

Student Aid Rated Above Tourist Lure

Substitution of a $2,000 bursary to assist a city student through university, for the previously proposed giant Labor Day parade as Victoria Labor Council's B.C. centennial project, was suggested Wednesday.

Percy Rayment, a member of the VLC centennial committee, said all suggested projects, aside from the permanent projects, were aimed at attracting tourists.

"I haven't got anything against tourists coming to Victoria, but I wonder whether as trade unionists we should make such tourist attractions as a parade our goal?"

A parade would cost much money and take a great deal of organization, Mr. Rayment said. "But it lasts two hours and it's gone."

A bursary, perhaps costing $500 annually for four years, would have a more lasting effect, he said.

Business Tax Decision Slated for Monday

'Chaos for Our City' Predicted

City council came close yesterday to decisions to levy business tax at a single rate and to collect trades licence fees instead of business tax when they exceed it.

[illegible] tered after long and confusing debate, the aldermen decided to wait until Monday to make final decisions on these two points.

Council gave preliminary approval at a previous meeting to a business tax bylaw providing for a single rate (likely around 7 per cent of assessed rental values) rather than the different rates for different types of business advocated by Ald. J. Donald Smith. Between meetings, aldermen were supplied with lists comparing trades licence fees with business tax at 7 per cent in several downtown blocks.

Ald. Smith asserted yesterday that the bylaw calling for a single rate "will bring chaos to our city"; doctors' and lawyers' fees would be reduced by as much as 40 per cent; fees of the majority of banks would be down 40 or 50 per cent, and the taxation of smaller stores would be increased up to 10 times as much in some instances.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow suggested that businesses should be required to pay the greater between business tax and trades licence fees. (This would eliminate reductions).

Council had decided to raise $160,000 more from business tax and licence fees this year than from licence fees last year, and "we are going to hurt some people, but . . . I do feel that this will be as fair as we can be for the first year. We have to raise the money."

From this point on there was confusion in the debate, because it was not established until nearly the end of the meeting that:

1. Trades licences were not being abolished.

2. The Municipal Act provided in effect that as long as trades licence fees were collected, businesses would automatically pay whichever was the greater, business tax or licence fees.

Ald. M. H. Mooney said he could not support the business tax as proposed—"In my heart I think there's trouble somewhere along the line. It stems from Ald. Smith saying we could collect $500,000 from firms not paying enough trades licence, and that these firms were willing to pay . . .

"We are not doing what we set out to do. We didn't set out to put an extra burden on small business people. This list shows that in 90 per cent of cases, their taxes are jumping."

Ald. Hugh Ramsay, business tax committee chairman, noted that council had decided to raise the extra $160,000 and "I anyone was under the impression that the little man was going to get off lighter, I personally am of the opinion that that was a misleading statement."

In Darkest America

AMERICA'S standing in the eyes of the world has been harmed beyond exaggeration by the appalling inter-racial incidents at Little Rock, Arkansas, at the opening of the new school year. It is almost beyond belief that a state governor would use the authority vested in him to call out the militia in order to prevent Negro students entering a high school which certain elements of the community choose to designate as a school for white pupils only. The spirit of Liberty must be hanging her head in shame in the United States this week.

In intervening against the Negro population in this revival of one of the most degrading episodes in American history Governor Faubus acted not only contrary to all concepts of human rights but also in defiance of superior authority. Though he has denied it, his employment of the National Guard and his whole attitude towards an explosive situation were in direct conflict with a United States court order requiring the admittance of colored students to so-called "white" schools. Even if there had been no such order his prejudice against one segment of the population under his jurisdiction brings the institution of state governorship into contempt.

This violation of the principles of freedom and justice might be treated as an internal matter not concerning other nations were it not for the fact that the United States in the United Nations Assembly and elsewhere is vociferous in preaching human rights to the rest of the world. What respect can anyone hold for American doctrine on this issue and American meddling in the internal affairs of other countries while a malignant force like this exists within "the land of the free"? Governor Faubus and the Negro-baiting, Negro-beating elements of the South make a mockery of pious protestations against persecution in other places.

In the words of a song from a currently popular play, "Why don't they clean up the mess that's inside?" Until America does this with respect to the rights of one of its own minority groups, hounded and spat upon for no reason other than race hatred, its crusade in behalf of human rights in other nations is arrant hypocrisy.

No Cause for Alarm

THERE is some danger perhaps that enthusiasm for next year's centennial program may run riot. B.C. is dedicated to marking its 100th birthday in a fitting and spectacular way but life cannot stand still in other connections. Certain mundane things must go on regardless and it will be just as well that they do. Victoria for example will not be en fete every day of the year 1958, nor, one hopes, every week either. A surfeit of pageantry would defeat its own ends; there must be time left to attend to ordinary civic business even as a leaven.

Much more than a mere leaven is involved in the resumption of the underground wiring project which was started in the downtown area last year and which is due to be resumed this month. Any suggestion that this work should be curtailed because it might interfere slightly with some centennial event does not bear serious examination. This is a four-year project of importance to the city which it could be argued is of greater priority even than a centenary; its results certainly will be more lasting. Nor can it be interrupted without considerable financial loss to those concerned and the throwing of men out of work. One supposes the centennial committee would not be prepared to underwrite such a loss in compensation for its convenience.

There is no conflict that matters in any case. The second phase of this large undertaking will be done in pieces; there is no thought of tearing up or otherwise disrupting downtown streets in mass. The schedule calls for small areas to be tackled at a time, with completion dates for each in successive order. Some of the job will be done during the winter months, thus providing valuable employment, and all of it finished in June of next year. There is the view of the city engineer in fact that the contractor may beat the schedule.

If there is some small inconvenience to centennial celebrations it cannot be helped, but at worst this should be of only minor proportions. A few blocks in a state of disrepair is no cause for alarm by anyone, nor does exaggeration of the situation help the issue. Far from re-scheduling the underground wiring program, it should be much easier to re-schedule or readjust centennial programs during the period concerned.

The Sloan Report

THE premature leaking out by way of an unofficial summary of the Sloan forestry report on the Mainland yesterday, a week before the government had arranged to make its announcement public generally, is to be regretted. Here is an important summation of the long-term needs and capacities of British Columbia's forest resources, prepared by the man whose fine initial inquiry into the subject led to the institution of sustained yield practices under the forest-management licence system. In a 900-page review of the current situation in B.C. woods Chief Justice Sloan now offers his considered opinions as to what may be needed by way of amendment, change or extensions.

The official report available to the Colonist yesterday is without a segregated summary or condensed recommendations, so that it must be read entire before its advice to government can be understood. In the light of that, we have no express comment to offer at this time as to the findings of the report. That will come later after a reasonable opportunity for its perusal and the reflection due to such an important matter. It is a pity, however, that Chief Justice Sloan's good work during a considerable period of investigation and research should have been made public in this catch-as-catch-can fashion. The government clearly intended otherwise, and it will be for the cabinet now to inquire what went amiss in its stated arrangements to upset a uniform release everywhere.

The value of Chief Justice Sloan's report, when it can be fully weighed and analyzed, rests in the fact that it will be an acute and completely independent review of the forest-management policy which has been kicked about a good deal too much in partisan circles in the last few years. Meanwhile nothing has occurred to change the nature of British Columbia's forest resources—they remain one of the chief assets of the province for all time to come. The question, long before partisan bickering intervened, is how can these permanent assets be conserved or used with fairness to all concerned.

We do not doubt that Chief Justice Sloan will have come up with a pertinent answer after his exhaustive inquiry, and one which will be of supreme importance to British Columbia.

Interpreting the News:

Soviet Satellites Confer

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

EASTERN Europe's two independent Communist leaders evidently have decided to strengthen their co-operation.

It has been made known that Polish Communist leader Wladyslaw Gomulka is to visit President Tito of Yugoslavia in mid-September.

It will be the first get-together of Polish and Yugoslav leaders since Tito broke away from Russian domination in 1948.

As Gomulka is to be accompanied by Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz, his nominal chief, the visit will attain official rather than purely Communist Party status.

This indicates that some formal Polish-Yugoslav agreements are in prospect.

Whatever happens, the meeting is pretty sure to strengthen Gomulka's position, after his own break-away from complete Russian domination last October.

It also is pretty sure to strengthen Tito's influence in the Communist world.

Hence any news that comes out of the Tito-Gomulka conference is almost certain to be bad news from the Soviet Russian viewpoint.

The Russians have been compelled to reconcile themselves to Gomulka's defiance.

Gomulka has not attained the complete independence from Russian domination that Tito won, to the amazement of the world.

But Poland's policies are no longer directed from the Kremlin and Poland is no longer listed as a Soviet satellite.

Tito is not only completely independent but he is a constant threat to Russia's steadily weakening hold on the remaining Communist satellite countries.

Tito conferred with Russian Communist leader Nikita S. Khrushchev on Aug. 1 and 2.

This meeting was held at Khrushchev's invitation. Advices from Yugoslavia say that Khrushchev first asked Tito to go to Russia. Tito refused. Khrushchev then asked Tito to invite him to Yugoslavia. Tito again refused. Khrushchev then managed to arrange the conference in Romania.

It was announced afterward that Tito and Khrushchev had agreed to work for the removal of "obstacles" that stood in the way of close Russian-Yugoslav relations. They also agreed that "brotherly co-operation" among the Communist countries was desirable.

To get this rather meaningless concession from Tito, the Russians had previously agreed to grant Yugoslavia $250,000,000 in economic aid.

Immediately after his return to Yugoslavia, Tito made it a point to express his conviction that complete equality among Communist countries offered the only basis for their co-operation.

With Poland and Yugoslavia lost, Russia is trying to keep its grip on its remaining satellites. But its grip is likely to loosen progressively.

Reports from Ottawa

THE Department of External Affairs made an announcement the other day which deserves to be read along with another announcement it made last winter.

The recent announcement deals with the way Canada is welcoming the birth of the Federation of Maya as a member of the Commonwealth—the family of free nations which owes its existence largely to the example and the leadership of Canada.

The earlier announcement, on Feb. 27, said that the then Mines Minister Prudham would represent Canada at the ceremonies at Accra March 5 marking the birth of the dominion of Ghana—formerly the Gold Coast Colony. It gave details of the Prudham party and how it would travel, but it made no mention of any special Canadian gifts to the new baby of the Commonwealth.

It wasn't until later that the story came out concerning the beneficence of our government. It had presented Ghana with a Canadian oil painting, a number of books on Canada, a dozen maps of Canada, and had given silver cigar boxes to five Ghanaian leaders.

A lot of people, including the Tory opposition, thought the government could have done better by Ghana.

Last Saturday, Malayan independence day, the new Conservative government had its chance to show how this thing should be done.

While cabinet minister J. M. Macdonnell headed the Canadian delegation extending felicitations on the spot in Kuala Lumpur, a Malayan flag was flown on Parliament Hill in Ottawa, and a 19-gun salute boomed across the Ottawa River to reverberate against the Gatineau Hills.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker designated G. W. Tory as Canada's high commissioner to Malaya.

It was announced that Canada's gifts to the new sister nation were:

Two writing desks and chairs for the MPs' writing room in the Malayan Parliament Building.

A library of Canadiana.

An annual scholarship for a Malayan to undertake graduate study at a Canadian university. The value of the scholarship is $2,000 a year plus travel allowance.

Additional technical assistance under the Colombo Plan, including technical textbooks valued at $5,600 and small electrical tools worth $3,000.

The relative importance of Ghana and Malaya to Canada is not a legitimate consideration in deciding what would be appropriate gifts to convey Canada's good wishes.

And certainly economic considerations—for example, how much Canadian wheat they will buy — should play no part in Canada's motivation on occasions like this.

Of course we want the Ghanians and the Malayans to be our friends, to work with us for world peace and prosperity and a better life for all. We don't want the Communists to take over either country—and so it might be argued that we have an axe to grind in being nice to our new Commonwealth relatives.

Well, that's nothing to be ashamed of, if we are as concerned about their welfare as Commonwealth members as we are about our own skins and prosperity; if we're welcoming them into the Commonwealth not for what they might be able to do for us, but for participation in what all members of the Commonwealth can do for one another and for humanity, not the least by working towards universal acceptance of high principles in domestic and international conduct.

Appreciation of the Commonwealth is, I suspect, going to be more markedly prominent in Ottawa henceforth than it seems to have been in the last several years.

London from Afar

Building Societies Eyeing Canada

By RICHARD L. THOMAS, Daily Colonist London correspondent now visiting Victoria

ACCORDING to current information some of the English building societies are contemplating opening up for business in Canada, and if they do it will offer new opportunities for home ownership. Specifically the Co-operative Permanent Building Society has investigated the position by sending officers to Canada who are favorably impressed by the opportunities. Other societies have expressed their interest.

The British building societies are the product of the industrial revolution. Many of them started more than a hundred years ago, operated in a small way designed to encourage thrift and investment in property. Some of them started with a small group of men paying in a small sum each week until sufficient capital existed to purchase a house or even enough to pay the difference between the value of the house and a private mortgage. Lots would be drawn from amongst the members and the lucky one would obtain the house — taking over the mortgage and still contributing to the funds of the society until another draw was possible and another member was able to take over a house.

From such humble beginnings the building society developed to its present massive proportions. Gradually outside capital was introduced to enable houses to be built, and in many instances insurance companies found building societies a useful field for investment. As they operate at present the societies receive deposits from the public in large and small amounts which they invest in house properties on long-term mortgages. Many societies today are offering 4% interest on deposits and charging 5½ on mortgages and covering management costs and all other operating expenditure on the 1½% margin.

Many people in Britain use the societies for ordinary savings purposes because they offer a better rate of interest than the savings banks, and larger investors find them attractive because the society pays income tax, with the result that a nominal 4% may be worth 6⅓% to those paying standard rates of tax and up to double that amount for those on maximum taxation rates. Some societies are able to provide accommodation far in excess of the mortgages and, in effect, merely act as manager and guarantor for the transaction to the insurance company.

As far as the ordinary citizen is concerned the building society offers a convenient means of saving. Normally deposits are accepted in any amount from a shilling upwards at any time. Inducements in the form of slightly increased interest bonus are usually offered to those who contract to make regular weekly savings for a specified period. The bonus is paid at the end of the contract. If it is unfulfilled then the lower rate of interest is paid on what has been accumulated.

Many people use the savings facilities to accumulate the deposit on a house. This is normally 10% on a new house; in exceptional circumstances it may be as little as 5%, and in the case of an old house from 20% to 30% according to valuation. Fixed-term mortgages are arranged for the balance and these are normally in five-year periods from five to 25 years, but some companies allow 30 years for repayment, and one of them 35 years. Although the society is bound by the agreed terms of repayment the borrower has the right of paying off at any time on giving three months' notice with consequent saving of interest. The borrower also has the right to make partial capital repayments during the life of a mortgage to reduce instalments.

The ordinary requirements for a mortgage are that the borrower must be of good character, in regular employment and that his mortgage obligation must not exceed one-sixth of his income, though in some cases one-fifth is accepted. Young married couples are especially encouraged because in ordinary circumstances the husband obtains advancement and finds no hardship in meeting an obligation which was regarded as reasonable when he was on a lower salary. Many borrowers increase their repayments by a proportion of salary increases.

As the building societies are concerned only with encouraging thrift and home ownership they are particularly careful not to allow a borrower to over-reach himself. Foreclosure is the very last thing the society wants, and it is a tribute to their management that foreclosures rarely exceed ¼ per cent. In times of illness, unemployment or other unforeseen hardship it is normal practice to extend the term of the mortgage and the borrower encouraged to make small token payments on account of interest.

It is estimated that well over four million homes in Britain have been purchased through building societies —mostly by people who otherwise could not have afforded to buy. In most cases interest and capital redemption are little if any more than rent, and there are several cases of tenants purchasing homes they were renting for less than the rent they were paying.

Purchasers are, of course, at liberty to sell their equity at any time, and normally an existing mortgage will be transferred to a new purchaser if he is approved by the society.

Probably the most surprising thing is not that the building societies are contemplating activities in Canada but that they have not done so before. Even more surprising perhaps is that Canadians have not started their own societies.

Crime in the Backyard

(From The Toronto Globe and Mail)

THE case in which a Waterloo man was convicted for drinking a bottle of beer in his own backyard illustrates the foolishness and hypocrisy of much of our liquor law.

The magistrate felt that he had no option but to find the accused guilty, although he remarked that "at least 1,000 Twin City citizens likely were doing the same thing on the same day." Section 79 (1) of the Ontario Liquor Control Act decrees that, apart from licensed premises, "no person shall consume liquor in any place other than a residence." Residence is defined as "any building or part of a building or tent in which a person resides." Thus, while it is perfectly legal for a homeowner and his guests to drink inside the house, they commit an offence if they adjourn to the lawn or garden.

It has been suggested—because of the odd reference to a tent in the subsection—that the unfortunate Waterloo man might have been safe if he had erected a tent in his backyard and drunk his beer inside it. Whether a garden umbrella would have been sufficient to throw a shade of legality over the proceedings is a question the Supreme Court will doubtless have to answer some day.

Petty hairsplitting legislation of this sort only serves to bring the law into contempt. Presumably its purpose is to discourage intoxication. There is, however, ample provision in the Liquor Control Act and in the Criminal Code against drunkenness and disorderly conduct, and enforcement of these prohibitions is all that is needed to protect the public.

Another important point was raised at the hearing. The magistrate noted that the neighbor who apparently told the police about the "offence" was not in court; and he regretted that informers cannot be made to appear in cases where charges may have been laid "as a spiteful act." There is a great deal of merit in this suggestion. The present situation, in which an individual may phone a "tip" to the police station regarding the alleged breach of some minor statute or by-law, and then withdraw from the matter, is made to order for malicious troublemakers. If such persons were made to come into court and identify themselves, there would probably be fewer "spite" prosecutions.

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARK

IN every city block, both uptown in the residential areas and downtown in the business sections, there were what we called back lanes when I was a boy.

Each block was bisected down the middle by a lane, and our backyards all ended with small gates opening on the lane.

Up the lane came the garbage wagons and ashcarts, and we put our garbage out in the lane on collection days, instead of on our front lawns as a present. Those of us who could afford a horse and buggy, as we now afford a car, had our stable facing on the back lane, and we drove our vehicle out the lane to the street, as we now back our car out the side drives.

Groceries, coal and wood and other deliveries were made via the lane. The butcher boy always came in through the back gate to the back door. The fronts of our houses were respectable, and not to be affronted by vulgar commerce. Our streets were decorous. They were not filled day and night with ashcarts, delivery vans, a rabble of traffic.

Today our streets have taken over the function of back lanes. They are service lanes, full of the rabble of traffic. But our homes face on them, instead of having their backs on them. It seems to me our achitects, filled with the ambition to be modern and functional, should face this problem without delay and start the fashion of turning our houses right way round. We should have our pretty faces to our gardens, and our back doors on the streets that have fallen sadly into the category of lanes.

Actually, like most architectural revolutions, it would be nothing new. In many parts of the Old World the cities and towns have few homes other than in the poor districts, facing the street. The streets are faced with walls of stone or brick, in which carriage gates and small gates admit you into lanes and back gardens. If you are delivering eggs, you take the turn in the lane that leads you to the back door. If you are a visitor, you follow a pretty hedged and gardened lane around the side to the front of the house which faces on gardens, terraces, greenhouses and a world as private as if you dwelt in the heart of the country.

An architect to whom I mentioned this matter said that the desire for privacy is disappearing from human nature. We love to be in the mob. Without racket and ceaseless activity, we would be uneasy.

Into Retirement

A MAN works for, and looks forward to, his retirement as a pleasurable interlude in which he will be free from the demands of the daily grind to do those things which are closest in his heart. And he needs no professional counsellor to tell him which things these are. They have been the dream of his life.

The conditions of a man's retirement are his own responsibility. Management has quite enough to do looking after the needs of its current work force without following the workes into his retirement.

Letters to the Editor

Horror, Disgust

On a recent trip to the PNE I became very interested in an exhibit pertaining to the work of the SPCA. However my interest soon changed to unbelieving horror and disgust as I examined a pamphlet which dealt with the inhuman methods in which our food animals are being slaughtered both in Canada and the United States.

To let an animal slowly bleed to death on a hoist without any previous attempts to render it unconscious seems to me unnecessary barbaric cruelty and something we should all bear the guilt of.

Immediate action against all this should be adopted and the necessary laws passed.

Cash-and-Carry Milk

Answering Charles Lewis and William Wendland re milk drivers' and dairy employees' wages and demands:

They admit drivers made up to $390 per month before the increase, which would now make it up to $420. I see the new guaranteed wage to drivers is now $300. Mr. Wendland states that commissions on sales in some cases come roughly to $225.

My figures of $300 to $340 for plant employees were received by me in good faith. Taking the Lewis, Wendland and Priestly figures plus the increase of $32.50, they would apparently get $295 to $327.50 per month.

Local 464 is affiliated with the International Brotherhood of Chauffeurs, Warehousemen, Helpers, and Teamsters' Union of U.S.A. After the awful revelations exposing Beck, Soffa, Brewster and company, that affiliation is certainly nothing to be proud of.

All union writers chose not to touch on the public's right to cheaper cash-and-carry-milk, even though that was the main topic in my letter.

It is time generally that our judiciary took hold of the union and wages question rather than the present almost useless system of so-called conciliation boards. Let's have fair play for the consumer, too.

Waste of Beauty

I was very much interested in the article of your Aug. 30 issue entitled "No Lighting—Park Stays Dark" because I arrived in Victoria about noon on Monday, the 19th, and Tuesday spent about four hours walking leisurely around and looking at the beautiful flowers in your park. I repeated the visit during the daylight hours later on in the week, and Friday night went to the Norwegian Dances and was astounded on leaving the park to find it in utter darkness.

Needless to say I got lost as I had used the Douglas Street entrance and came out on Rupert Street, but the thought stayed with me of the waste of beauty by not having lights on the street at least.

I am a great lover of flowers and think the gardens here at the Empress Hotel and those in Beacon Hill Park surpass any I have seen in my two weeks' stay here.

Too Melodramatic

Have just finished reading the article by Earl Ubell (the first and I trust the last) on heart attacks.

Admitted that all he says is quite true, but his manner of presenting the facts would do credit to, say, a Confidential magazine contributor.

It reads like sheer sensationalism and should at least have one definite effect. It will scare the very young and the very old literally to death, not to mention the in-betweens who "scare easy."

The public needs enlightenment, but please do not attempt such by publishing articles written in this melodramatic manner. The man sounds positively morbid.

Fountain Bottleneck

Natural laws have been broken at the Fountain Circle to form the bottleneck. The input must equal the output and one cannot force a camel or a car through the eye of a needle.

There are six roads entering it; thus there should be three lines of traffic around a much smaller centre, not one as at present forcing them through the eye of the needle.

Three of these roads emanate from Saanich or Oak Bay and the unorganized area. Thus in the very increased traffic of the present is caused by the neighboring municipalities, who should bear part of the cost.

In Paris, France, at the Place d'Etoile around the Arc de Triomph there are 12 streets and six lines of traffic and traffic enters and peels off quite orderly.

How Icebergs Are Born

Small icebregs are being formed and sent out from a glacier at the head of Phillips Bay, Ellesmere Island, in northern Arctic. Icebergs have not been able to float away, and snow-covered moraines, deposits of earth and rocks carried away by a glacier or icesheet, project into bay.—(CP)

Wage Restraint

TUC Rejects Tories' Plea

ters) — The Trades Union Congress, representing 8,300,000 workers, Thursday rejected the Conservative government's call for wage restraint.

The rejection is almost certain to lead to a new round of pay claims.

The 1,000 delegates approved a resolution declaring the unions will not accept a policy which would cut living standards and accusing the government of shirking the responsibilities of stimulating production and dealing with prices and profits.

NOT BLUFFING

Frank Cousins, head of the 1,300,000-strong Transport and General Workers Union, said, "we are not calling anybody's bluff. We are not bluffing either."

Cousins, in moving the resolution, said the unions are ready to go through every step of negotiation and, if proper, arbitration.

"But," he added, "we also reserve our right as an organization to withdraw labor. . . . If that is the only way we can get justice we shall still seek justice. . . ."

Cousins said prices have risen in many cases because of high interest charges, removal of food subsidies, increased social security charges and a recent act which allows landlords to increase rents.

Bryan Roberts, National Union of Public Employees, moved a resolution noting it has not been possible for the TUC general council to carry out the mandates of earlier congresses pledging nationalization of industry.

LOSE ELECTION

He said on paper there is a difference over nationalization between Labor party leaders and the TUC.

He added the difference must be solved quickly or it could cause Labor to lose the next general election.

'Hitler-Like' Quebec Rule

WINNIPEG (BUP) — A Toronto trade union official lashed out yesterday at Premier Duplessis' "Hitler-like government" of Quebec.

Stanley A. Little, Union of Public Service Employees, charged that Quebec's natural resources were being sold to feed "the octopus of political patronage." He said many organizing opportunities would be available to unions "when and if the people of Quebec are sufficiently sickened and destroy his racket-ridden political machine."

Prize Flowers Meal For Fugitive Hogs

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP)—Even with the high price of meat, Mrs. W. S. Tucker was not at all happy when tons of lively prime pork were dumped on her front lawn here Thursday.

A huge livestock transport, en route from Ralston, Neb., to Tacoma, Wash., overturned in front of the Tucker house where the Spokane Valley freeway curves into the city's one-way street system. The cab caught fire and five hogs were killed, but neither of the drivers was hurt.

"Those are my prize flowers," said Mrs. Tucker as she watched the porkers finish off the last vegetation. "I sent away for them. I don't know how they can be replaced."

Early Morning Mystery Fire Guts $3,500 Esquimalt Home

Fire which burned through telephones wires before a call for help could be completed destroyed a $3,500 Esquimalt home yesterday morning.

Mrs. Sophia Heglin, 44, of 782 Cave, was alone in the house at 5:45 a.m. when she was awakened by a "crackling" noise. Getting up to learn the cause, she discovered a fire in the utility room.

Mrs. Heglin tried to put the fire out, but it was burning too badly.

She went to the telephone and was "pretty excited, I guess," she said, "because I phoned the operator and asked her to get me the city fire department.

"Just as I was telling them where the fire was, the phone went dead."

Flames by now were spreading into the kitchen and living room of the 65-year-old house, so Mrs. Heglin, wearing only her nightgown and housecoat, picked up her dog and cat and ran outside.

Two Esquimalt patrol cars and a fire truck went out, and soon found the fire. By then, however, it had a good hold.

Within 15 minutes the firemen, assisted by an RCN fire truck, had the blaze under control, but it was too late to save the house.

Mrs. Heglin's husband Lorne was working at the Davenport boathouse, Cowichan Bay, and learned of the fire later in the morning. House and contents were insured, he said.

A friend staying with the family, Douglas Goodale, 21, had risen early yesterday morning to go fishing. He had a cold breakfast, and left at about 5:30 a.m. Mrs. Heglin had called him, then dozed off again.

The Heglins have no idea how the fire may have started. The stove was not lit, nor was anyone smoking in the house. Cause is still under study by Esquimalt fire department. It is believed the flames originated in a clothes rack.

In a backyard workshop were stored several gallons of paint and bottles of turpentine, which fortunately were not reached by the flames. The house had been painted recently, inside and out.

The Heglins lost all their belongings, including Mrs. Heglin's pocketbook containing $100.

She is staying with a sister-in-law, Mrs. Henry Schroyen, 724 Vancouver. Mrs. Schroyen has made an appeal for men's and women's clothing for the burned-out couple, which may be sent to the Vancouver street address.

Penned Animals Carved By Two Young Sadists

ST. CATHARINES, Ont.—A Humane Society official disclosed yesterday that two boys, aged 9 and 11, broke into a slaughter house and carved up five pigs and steers while they were trapped helpless in their pens.

Inspector Arthur Henry said it was the most sadistic case he had seen. The boys found butcher knives in the slaughter house and made a savage attack on a dozen pigs and five steers. They cut off the pigs' tails and inflicted deep slashes.

U.K. Comets Coming

LONDON (UP) — Britain announced yesterday a jet-powered Royal Air Force Comet 2H will fly non-stop to the United States next Monday.

The Comet flight will be the first East-to-West non-stop crossing of the Atlantic for a Comet. One flew the other way last year from Canada. The plane then will continue down the East coast to Florida.

The announcement, made by an Air Ministry spokesman at the Farnborough Air Show, said four other Comets will fly to the United States with refueling stops at Gander — to participate in the strategic Air Command's bombing competition at Pinecastle air force base, Fla.

The first Comet will carry ground crews and spare personnel for RAF bombers participating in the bombing competition. It is the first time since 1952 England has taken part in high altitude precision bombing tests.

The British bomber command also is sending three Vulcan Delta-Wing bombers.

Watch the Details: They're Important

Have you ever stood on a crowded street car or in a line-up somewhere and looked at the clothes other men are wearing? Really looked hard. Try it. You'll realize what a sorry sight some are and you should be able to pick up a few good tips.

The fellow standing next to you may be wearing very expensive clothes but the whole effect may be ruined by a small mistake. That is because he has never learned the basic principles of good grooming.

If you doubt your own judgment, try the test below which is designed to give you an idea of just how smart you are—sartorially speaking, of course.

If you score 12 you should be listed among Canada's 10 best-dressed men.

1. With what color suit should you wear a green shirt?
2. Would a grey hat blend well with a brown suit?
3. What kind of suit pattern would you recommend for a stout man?
4. Are worsted materials suitable for sport jackets?
5. Which are more fashionable—single or double-breasted jackets?
6. Would you be absolutely correct in wearing a tuxedo at a function described as strictly formal?
7. What style of hat would you recommend for a tall man with a long face?
8. Which is correct — the tubular or Windsor tie knot?
9. How far should shirt collars show above a suit collar?
10. Are cufflinks more desirable than button-cuffs?
11. Are patterned dress-shirts in bad taste?
12. Should button-down shirt collars be worn with dressy suits?

ANSWERS:
1. Brown.
2. No.
3. Stripes aid in giving a slimming appearance.
4. Yes.
5. At the present time single-breasted remains most popular but the double-breasted style should make a comeback late this year.
6. No, only tails are technically correct for after-six formal functions.
7. A hat with low crown and wide brim.
8. Either.
9. Half an inch.
10. Yes.
11. Not if conservative and worn with plain colored suits.
12. No.

LONDON FASHIONS for autumn bring back the half-belt effect and large buttoned patch-pockets in a classic British wool and camel hair sports coat from the Crayson collection, at left and add a new fashion twist—the dramatic tailored bow on a two-piece dress, at right. The outfit of heavy knit British woollens jersey is from the Polly Peck of London autumn collection.

British Old Hands

Art, Craft Link In Wool-Making

The British are old hands at making good wool cloth. In fact, they have been at it since the time of Julius Caesar. The invading Roman legions found the native Britons weaving wool and encouraged them in their craft. They established an "imperial weaving manufactory" at Winchester where cloth was made for the emperors, thus marking the beginning of Britain's long history of exporting fine woollens, worsteds and specialty cloths.

In the Middle Ages wool was England's great source of wealth. As the poet wrote:

"Though Jason's Fleece was famed of old,
The British wool is growing gold."

So important was wool to England's welfare that in the parliaments of Henry VIII the officers of the king's council were seated on sacks of British wool to put them "in mind of preserving and advancing the trade and manufacturing of wool." Even today the House of Lords opens with the announcement: "The Lord Chancellor took his seat upon the Woolsack."

The fine reputation of British wool cloth reaches back to the 12th Century guilds of London, Winchester, Lincoln and Oxford with their stern insistence on good workmanship.

Even in those early years British woollens and worsted were exported far and wide by the Merchant Adventurers. Dick Wittington, the "orphan boy who became Lord Mayor of London," was apprenticed as a lad to one of these woollen export merchants.

The kings of England, who knew a good thing when they saw it, fostered the woollen industry by royal decree. Edward III invited Flemish weavers to come to England and ply their "mistery." Later Henry VIII welcomed Dutch and Walloon weavers fleeing from Spanish religious persecution, and they also stimulated the British industry with new fabrics and new ideas.

In the 18th Century, factories arose along the mill streams of Yorkshire, and the West Riding became the wool-manufacturing centre of the world.

Today this Yorkshire district products most of Britain's woollen and worsted cloth, but the West of England, the Border country of Scotland, and the Scottish isles contribute the special types of woollens for which they have long been famed. British woollen and worsted manufacturers remain alert to the changing patterns in world-wide demand for their products. They export as much wool cloth as the rest of the world put together.

High-Style Creations . . . Last Three Years

In Fashions, Life Is Short

Especially appropriate for the bright, brisk cross-country motoring days of fall are the topcoat in fine Cheviot from Scotland (left) and the warm, lightweight British woollens camel hair touring topper (right), by Hickey-Freeman and Baker, respectively.

Most women who can afford to buy dresses made by the glamorous names of high fashion make the mistake of buying too late.

What is the fashion life of the creations of such big names as Norman Hartnell, Hardy Amies, Frederic Starke and their contemporaries?

Rarely less than three years.

If you were to buy a dress from one of these designers at the collections, you could be assured of being avant-garde for a year, dressed in the height of fashion for a further year, and still fashionably dressed in the year to follow.

If your budget allows you to buy a number of dresses, say three or four a year, for special occasions, for parties, cocktails, dinners, or when you accompany your husband to business functions, then you can afford high fashion.

Unfortunately most of us wait too long. We let others adopt the fashion first with a "wait-and-see" attitude. By the time we are prepared to buy the fashion is at full bloom and about to become the current style.

This fall is a good time to launch yourself into the elite of fashion. Hemlines are mid-calf, or longer, colors are warm and the accent is on the "relaxed" look.

The materials being used are warm and soft. Jerseys are firmer and more versatile than ever before. Fine British wool jersey is seen again and again in suits, in straight coats, in casual dresses.

There is also a very noticeable trend, especially in the more important collections, towards lighter weight woolens, mostly in dresses. For the first time flannels, and smooth surface woollens are taking over from the wool georgettes, so familiar in past collections.

One of the freshest looks this year is in the colorful print woollens. Paisley designs, little flowers, and geometric patterns look appealingly feminine in soft wool day dresses.

To give you an idea of the fashion trends, here are a few of the features from some of the London collections.

The Dorville collection well illustrates the new relaxed look. Firm lightweight wool jersey is used for a dramatically draped afternoon dress with a fly-away fringed panel to use as a hood, stole or cowl. Two-piece outfits in soft tweeds have stem-slim skirts, loose wide-belted bush-jacket tops.

Frank Usher shows an exciting version of the barrel-skirt in a casual dress of soft woollen tweed — blue flecked with light colors. Wide stand-away necklines have knit edging.

Flowing chiffon ties give a delicate air to Elizabeth Henry's two-piece dresses.

Here's What to Look For Buying a New Suit?

Buying a new suit is quite an event! Not only is there now a vast choice of patterns, colors and fabrics, but a new suit now represents an investment not to be sneezed at. Consequently, the most important thing after making color and fabric choice is to make sure you get a good fit.

What style to buy? Where to buy it? How much to pay? Those are questions you have to answer yourself after conducting a junior-sized survey. Let's assume you've made up your mind and are rarin' to go. Now—a word of caution on fitting.

A good fit, is, perhaps, more important than any other feature of a good suit. It can ward off for awhile the eventual poor appearance of fabrics and—no matter what style you choose — it can make the suit look as if it's yours.

HELP YOURSELF

It's to the salesman's advantage to make sure you get a proper size and fit in ready-made and custom-tailored clothes. However, you must also help yourself.

Don't buy a ready-made suit if it needs major alterations.

Adjusting lengths of sleeves and trousers, fitting the waistband, or raising the shoulder slightly are possible changes, but don't allow anything else. If the suit needs more work than this, try another make or style.

While you're trying on a ready-made suit or having your final fitting, check the following points one by one. Remember, the small faults you may shrug off today will be the faults which will persuade you to leave the suit hanging in your closet in the future.

SHOW COLLAR

1. Collar must sit smoothly, close to the back and side of your neck; showing at least a quarter-inch of shirt collar.

2. There should be a firm, unbroken line from neck to shoulder point; no lumpy padding.

3. Armholes should be comfortable. Lift your hands above your head; there should be no straining-lift of the jacket.

4. Make sure the sleeves are not tapered too tightly or too widely so that they will wrinkle. Above all make sure that about half an inch of shirt cuff shows on each sleeve.

5. Button the jacket—if the waistline is immediately pulled, put it back in the hands of the tailor. An easy, smooth fit is not disturbed as you move—but a tight jacket will allow nothing for that little extra poundage to which nearly everybody is susceptible.

6. Is the coat long enough to cover the seat of the trousers? The short jacket may look terribly smart in Southern Italy but in Canada it simply means a bad fit!

7. Important! Make sure the trousers hang straight, crease on straight. There should be no back pull when you walk, no bagginess in the seat and no wrinkles below the crotch.

LOOK LIMP

One more point to remember. Whether you buy the finest British Woollens or the poorest synthetic, all fabrics will eventually look limp unless the fabric inside a suit is of high grade. Better suits have "coat-fronts" (that's the stuffing in the front of the jacket) or good hair canvas, with fine haircloth covered with thin felt or flannel inside the shoulders.

Appearance is, particularly important for the summer season. A couple of hours in the sun, especially if there is high humidity, will make a badly made suit of poor fabric show up so badly that it might as well have a sign declaring "I'm an inferior suit."

According to the fashion experts, wool is held in the esteem of the top clothing manufacturers in Canada. Why? Wool is porous and absorbent—in other words, it lets the air in to cool your body but also absorbs uncomfortable dampness.

Junior Rocks Reach Canadian Lacrosse Final

Victorians in Sweep, Rout Winnipeg, 14-8

WINNIPEG (Special)—Victoria Junior Shamrocks made a five-year dream come true here Thursday night, then settled back to start work on realizing an even bigger ambition.

The young Rocks, who have played together through the various divisions of the Greater Victoria Minor Lacrosse Association for the past few years, downed Winnipeg Combines, 14-8, last night to bring Victoria its first Western Canada junior lacrosse championship.

PRAISES CLUB

"They played beautifully; everybody played beautifully," bubbled coach Archie Browning last night. "If they play that way from now on, it's going to take a mighty good team to keep that cup away from us."

"That cup" is the Minto Cup, emblematic of the Canadian junior championship and the one the Junior Rocks go after in a few days.

The team heads east this morning, and will play either Peterborough or Brampton in the best-of-five Canadian final.

Brampton squared the best-of-seven Eastern Canada final at three games each last night by defeating Peterborough, 14-8.

Browning was optimistic about the Rocks' chances.

"The club that wins in the east will be hard to beat, we know that. But no team could be any bigger or any rougher than this Winnipeg bunch. We got by them all right, and if we don't let down, we should be okay."

HAMILTON STARS

Browning laid a great deal of the credit for last night's win at the door of goalie Don Hamilton. Hamilton turned in a brilliant chore as he shut out the Combines until 7:21 of the third quarter while the Rocks were piling up an 8-0 lead.

When the Rocks let down slightly in the fourth quarter, it was Hamilton who stopped Winnipeg breakaways time and again.

Hamilton also drew two assists on long clearing passes to Jack Showers. Showers paced the Rocks with four goals, while Walt Harris and Jack Wilson, a two-way standout, each added three. Stu Smith scored twice and Bob Showers and Ross Roskamp once.

Combines, behind 9-3 after three quarters, pulled out all stops in a desperate last-quarter drive that netted them two unanswered goals. But Showers got those to break the back of the Winnipeg drive.

Combines, who averaged between 180 and 200 pounds, proved rugged opponents, but the superior Shamrock passing and speed was too much for them to cope with. An all-star club, the Combines also were at a disadvantage in that team members hadn't played together for long.

The game almost erupted into a brawl late in the fourth frame. Ted Harris of Combines went off for roughing and seconds later Len Morrow started swinging at Wilson.

Taunted by players on the Shamrock bench, Morrow leaped over the boards into the box, but was pulled away before a fight broke out.

Farewell, New York

By way of saying farewell to the Polo Grounds, Giant pitcher Marv Grissom tells his seven-year-old son, Bruce, some of the past glories of the baseball team as the Giants prepare to leave New York for San Francisco, their new National League home.

Wipper Plans Lineup Shift; Shamrocks Set

Coach Harry Wipper, with a second Mann Cup slipping slowly out of his grasp, will do some juggling between now and Saturday night in an effort to shake up his sagging Nanaimo Timbermen.

Wipper, decidedly unhappy over his club's performance Wednesday, when they lost 12-8 to Victoria Shamrocks in the third game of the Western Canada lacrosse final, stated last night that he will shift players on all three lines for Saturday's game at Nanaimo.

SPIRITS STILL HIGH

"Our spirits are still high, and with Jack Bionda out of action, we should have a better chance to tie the series again," Wipper remarked last night.

"But," he added darkly, "we played poorly on Wednesday, and if we don't improve we won't win another game this season, Bionda or no Bionda.

"Our defence was terrible, and we missed Skip McKay and Derry Davies. But with Bionda out, things may even out. I might put Jackie Milburn back in the lineup Saturday, too."

Whitey Severson, admittedly dejected over the fact that Bionda had hit referee Sid Greenwood and had been barred from the series, still managed to find a bright side to the incident.

"We'll miss him, but I think the boys will play that much harder Saturday. They've sort of been depending on Jack. Now they'll just have to go out and do things themselves."

NORTHUP TAKES OVER

Bionda scored one goal Wednesday before he was ejected in the first quarter. Jackie Northup moved up from defence to play on the number one line with Bob Dobbie and Pee Wee Bradshaw. Severson said last night that Northup will likely stay on the first line.

Northup has four goals in the three playoff games. Bionda had eight, but Bradshaw has only one and Dobbie two.

Shamrock's second line has been carrying a good deal of the scoring load. Eddie Kowalyk has four goals, Don Sherry has netted three, and Al Gill one.

Other than a few bruises, Severson said the club came out of Wednesday's game in top shape.

Signs for Bout

LONDON (AP) — Willie Toweel, South African holder of the British Empire lightweight boxing title, has agreed to meet Jimmy Carter of New York, in a 10-round fight at London's Royal Albert Hall, Oct. 8. Carter is a former world champion.

Mays Threat for Title; Gains on Ailing Musial

BUD BROWN

Leading Navy's offence when the sailors clash with Mayo Vampires tonight in their opening game in the Victoria Intermediate Canadian football league will be quarterback Bud Brown, starting his third season with the club. Rear Admiral H. S. Rayner, Flag Officer of the Pacific Coast, will make the opening kickoff at Royal Athletic Park at 8 p.m.

NEW YORK—San Francisco baseball fans likely will inherit a sixth-place club in the New York Giants, but they may wind up with the National League batting champion—Willie Mays.

With less than four weeks remaining in the 1957 campaign, the colorful Mays has moved to within five points of Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals, the senior circuit's leader who has been sidelined since Aug. 22 with a shoulder injury.

Although Mays lost a bit of ground Wednesday night by going hitless in four trips, the fleet outfielder has been moving at a hot pace the past two weeks and boasts a .335 average in games through Wednesday. Musial is at .340.

FINE SEASON

Mays, who won the National League title with a .345 mark in 1954, leads his league in triples with 19 and stolen bases with 34. Willie is second in runs scored (103) and hits (173), fourth in home runs (31) and tied for third in runs batted in (91).

Musial and Mays appear to be the only players with a chance of winning the batting crown. Hank Aaron of Milwaukee is third at .322 and Ed Robinson of Cincinnati, Dick Groat of Pittsburgh and Dee Fondy of Pittsburgh follow at .321.

Illness and injuries have put a damper on the American League batting race. Ted Williams of Boston still leads with a .376 mark but the veteran outfielder has been bedded with a chest cold.

But ailing Mickey Mantle has been losing ground on the Boston slugger and his average has dropped seven points to .369 during the past five days. Mantle, playing despite severe shin splints, has failed to hit in the Yankees' last three games.

Toronto Grid Fans Lack Civic Pride

TORONTO (CP)—Lew Hayman, managing director of the Toronto Argonauts, levelled a blast Thursday at Toronto's apathy towards its Big Four football team.

Hayman told the Canadian Progress Club that a stadium full of hostile fans would be easier to take than the present brand of loyalty—"at least, you could hear the noise."

He said civic pride gets through to the players, and affects the game. "It must be rebuilt in Toronto," he said.

St. Louis' second-place Cardinals, unconvinced that Milwaukee has the National League pennant in the bag, completed a sweep of a two-game series with the leaders Thursday night by battering the Braves, 10-1, and cutting their lead to six-and-a-half games.

While the Braves were losing two in a row for the first time since August 18, when the Cardinals swept a doubleheader at Milwaukee, third-place Brooklyn hung on with a 3-1 victory at Philadelphia. The defending champion Dodgers now trail by eight games.

Fastballing Sam Jones knocked off the Braves on four hits, striking out six and walking only two while gaining his 11th victory. The Cards banged 12 hits off four pitchers with Lew Burdette, failing to go the distance for the fourth successive game, taking his eighth loss against 14 wins.

Joe Adcock made his first appearance for the Braves since breaking his leg June 23, and grounded out in a pinch hit role.

ROEBUCK AGAIN

Carl Erskine, the righthander nobody wanted when Brooklyn put him on the waiver list, tossed a one-hitter at the Phils for seven innings, but needed Ed Roebuck's relief help to nail his fourth victory.

Robin Roberts was tagged for Rube Walker's two-run double in the second and Carl Furillo's run-scoring double in the fourth as he went down to his 19th defeat—the most he has ever lost in 11 seasons of organized baseball.

Cincinnati regained a fourth-place tie with the Phillies by whipping Chicago, 4-1, and dropping the Cubs into the basement. Brooks Lawrence won his 14th of the season as Don Hoak's two-run double in the second inning started the Reds on their way.

New York Yankees boosted their lead over the idle Chicago White Sox to five-and-a-half games by downing Boston Red Sox, 5-2, on the strength of relief pitcher Bob Grim's first hit of the season—a three-run homer in the bottom of the ninth.

The Yankees, who have won only eight of their last 18, tied it at 2-2 in the eighth when Willard Nixon walked three and Gil McDougald laced a two-out single. Grim, who came on in relief of Bob Turley, hit his second major league homer to break the deadlock, the ball just reaching the right field seats.

Southpaw Chuck Stobbs picked up his eighth win by holding Baltimore to three hits in a 3-0 victory for Washington. Stobbs, who has lost 18, was working on a one-hitter until the ninth.

Two Victorians Gain Golf Semis at Jasper

JASPER — Two Victoria golfers advanced to the semi-finals, and one Victorian was eliminated yesterday as championship play continued in the annual Totem Pole Open golf tournament here.

Gordon Verley of the Victoria Golf Club, twice a runner-up for the title, moved on with a 2 and 1 victory over Fred King, a low handicapper from Calgary.

Mrs. J. H. Todd, also of the Oak Bay club, moved into the semis with an easy 6 and 4 triumph over Mrs. J. J. Mauer of Seattle but Mrs. Harold Husband of Victoria took a 6 and 5 defeat at the hands of Mrs. H. J. Rahe of Seattle, 6 and 5.

Mrs. Todd, runner-up to Marlene Stewart Streit last year and the tourney medalist this year, meets Mrs. Rahe today. The other semi-final matches Mrs. W. F. Knox of Vancouver against Miss D. M. Andrew, also of Vancouver.

Verley will play medalist Bud Campbell, a former Washington State champion, who advanced yesterday with a 3 and 1 victory over Ralph Cossey of New Westminster.

In other matches eyesterday, John McMahon of Edmonton edged Hal Kihlman of Seattle, one up, and R. C. Leatherdale of Winnipeg downed A. J. Watson of Vancouver.

Undefeated Fletchers Capture Colonist Cup

Fletchers, champions of the Senior "B" Men's Softball League, wound up their season with a 7-2 victory over Mary's Coffee Bar at Heywood Avenue Park to win the annual Daily Colonist Knockout Cup competition.

The Clothiers, who were beaten by Ladysmith in the Vancouver Island championships, went through the double-loss elimination tournament undefeated, winning four games.

Glen Bullen held Mary's to four hits in last night's abbreviated contest, which was called after six innings because of darkness. Bullen also helped out at the plate with a home run.

Fletchers scored three runs off Ron Rogers in the first inning, added two more in the fourth and another two in the sixth.

Mrs. R. W. Ball took bronze division honors with a 99-27—72.

Two New Teams Added To City Soccer League

Prospects for the 1957 Victoria and District Football League brightened considerably last night when two new clubs, Canadian Hungarians and Victoria Kickers, were admitted into the league.

A total of 10 clubs will be ready for action when the league opens on Sept. 14. All of last year's teams—Gorge Hotel, Brodie's Bakery, Canadian Scottish, Punjab United, Butler Brothers, Heaneys, Esquimalt and Tillicums—have re-entered.

Entry of the Hungarians and the Kickers, a German club, and the addition of several Old Country players into the league, are expected to provide a good brand of crowd-pleasing soccer.

Several former Hungarian second division players have signed with the Hungarian entry.

Officials hope to select a Victoria representative side later in the season to play against at least one Vancouver team from the Pacific Coast Soccer League. It is also hoped to have the side play against an English touring team as part of the B.C. centennial celebrations next year.

The league also decided to move the annual Jackson Cup matches forward this season. The long, drawn-out series, which usually wound up well into the winter months, will start October 6.

Only problem facing the league at the moment is a shortage of referees, but officials hope to have the shortage remedied by the start of the schedule.

Vic Lea Defends Title at Uplands

Vic Lea will open defence of his Uplands Golf Club title on Sunday when 94 golfers tee off in the qualifying round to determine the 16 survivors for championship play.

Lea is expected to have plenty of stiff opposition in his bid for a second straight title. Among the top contenders are Cecil Leeder, Bill Wiseman, Eddie Skeggs, Al Rose, Claude Hodgson and Gordon Peters.

How to Fool a Peony

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

If you have a hankering for a display of gorgeous peony blooms in your garden next year, you'd better get cracking and get the roots ordered and planted within the next two or three weeks.

Peonies can of course be planted in the spring and the plants will make quite satisfactory growth from a spring planting but blooming is something else again. Spring-planted peonies have a habit of going off into a fit of the sulks and refusing to bloom until properly settled down.

In the late summer or early fall however you catch the plants just as they are falling asleep and when they wake up and start growing in the spring they'll never know what happened to them. They'll go ahead and produce blooms without any resentment at all.

It is surprising how much sheer nonsense has been written about the planting of peonies. If you are to believe the average garden book, it is necessary to dig a hole big enough and deep enough to bury a horse and all for a little peony root just big enough to cover the outstretched hand.

And I should pause here to remark that a peony root the size of the palm of your hand is just about the ideal size for planting.

My reason for being sceptical about digging an enormous grave for a little peony root is simply this. These plants are extremely finicky about their depth of planting. The little growth buds on the top of the root should be exactly two inches below the soil surface—no more, no less.

If they don't have this much covering they suffer from heaving in periods of alternate frost and thaw and they dry out too easily in summer. If you put them in deeper than two inches you get all leaves and no flowers.

When you dig a deep hole for your plant filling it up with broken bricks, chopped sod, rotted manure and all the other odds and ends recommended by the garden books, the soil is going to settle, that's for sure, and your peony root will settle with it, winding up far too deep for good performance. Moreover, such holes often act as drainage sumps for the rest of the garden, thereby drowning the peony plants.

When you buy your peony roots, trim off any fibrous roots which may be present, leaving the trunk roots as clean as a sweet potato and soak them overnight before planting. If you buy enough roots to make it worthwhile, it is good practice to buy a small [illegible] and give them a 15-minute dip. This is a fungicide used ordinarily for treating seed potatoes against rot and other diseases, but with peonies it seems to impart extra vigor as well as killing off any disease spores.

In planting make your hole big enough and deep enough to take the root without cramping and try it on for size to see how deep the crown buds will be. Stretch a board across the hole and measure down with a ruler, for the eye is notoriously inaccurate in estimating depth.

If the hole is too deep, add a bit more soil and pound it down a little so the root is resting on firm earth which won't settle and sink. Mix a little peat moss and bone meal with the fill-in soil and water in with a drop or two of vitamin B1 in the water, finishing off with loose dry soil on top.

Butcher of the Arts

By RICHARD MANEY

[illegible]

Television is the cannibal of the communicative arts. It also excels in vandalism. What it cannot devour it seduces, rots and abandons.

Madison Avenue and Radio City are strewn with the carcasses of the writers, directors and comedians it has bribed, corrupted and betrayed. An insatiable glutton, it's not content to feast on its own young. Since its operatives lack invention, courage and imagination, television preys on its rivals.

Successively it has wolfed down the audiences and the stars of radio, screen and stage. Not content with gutting the clientele and the headliners of its competitors, it buys up stage and screen hits of the past, then mutilates them beyond recognition in abortive attempts to improvise two hours of plot and dialogue in a 30-minute straitjacket.

Paring a stage or screen play calls for delicate surgery by a skilled hand. The original was revised and condensed repeatedly before it faced an audience. To halve such a work, then submit it to loud and vulgar interruptions can only result in disaster. But these corruptions, seemingly, are no problem for the savages who butcher to the sponsor's tune.

The first consideration is the product of the nabob who's footing the bill. Only after the miracle properties of hair tonic, cigarettes or floor wax have rattled the windows of the nation's living rooms may the words of Hamlet, Sidney Howard or Charley Chan intrude, time permitting.

There's no evidence that the FCC makes the slightest effort to curb television's excesses. Commercials become louder, duller and more frequent from day to day. Nauseating claims for a hundred soaps and salves and nostrums confirm no newspaper advertising desk would accept, deafen the ethers daily.

Fifteen beers are the best, the tangiest and the tastiest. The suspicion grows that television's tycoons can flout codes of conduct and proprieties with impunity. Any day now we may expect to hear pagans to a cigarette that will cure lung cancer.

Stage and screen sages would be well advised to cease brainwashing with television. Cut off from these sources, it's possible television might turn creative instead of aping and appropriating its elders. But before stage and screen can put a stop to traffic with the enemy, their authors and producers must drain the aspirin out of their spines and substitute tamroids.

To bolster their determination, let them reflect on the plight of the Giants and the Dodgers. Television has forced these teams to flee our city to fly to ills that will not of [illegible] California. Succumbing to $7,000,000 bids for the right to bring their contests into metropolitan parlors, the management of both teams has seen attendance shrink alarmingly. With the presence of a million fans at the Polo Grounds a [illegible] site to profit, the Giants will be lucky to attract 600,000 fans this season.

* * *

Why should anyone trek to Ebbets Field or the Polo Grounds, be subjected to jostling, stale peanuts, subway heaps and an expenditure of three bucks when he can see the fracas from his couch for nothing?

How long would "My Fair Lady" sell out if it was shown free on TV every night?

In the four years that Milwaukee has been in the National League it has drawn more customers than Giants and Dodgers combined. The reason for New York's delinquency and Milwaukee's enthusiasm? None of Milwaukee's games are televised. To see them, the burghers must go to its park.

Who would buy gasoline if it was given away? Or bread? Or the Giants? Elementary, my dear Watson.

World's Biggest

TOKYO (AP) — The Tokyo city government claimed yesterday the Japanese metropolis has become the largest city in the world, passing New York and London.

The metropolitan office said Tokyo's population reached 8,518,622 on Aug. 1.

A special census conducted in New York last July put that city's population at 7,771,509, a drop of 120,448 from the 1950 federal census standard. But the greater New York area's population is more than 14,000,000.

Reference works put greater London's 1956 head count at 8,270,480.

BRIDGE QUIZ

It is nice to hear partner make a strongly urging rebid but it can also be embarrassing. For example, suppose the bid ding goes:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	1 N.T.	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	?

What should South bid with each of the following hands?

♠ 10 5 4 3
◇ Q 7 4 2
♣ K J 5

(b)
♠ 7 5 4
♡ J 5
◇ A 10 7 5
♣ K 9 6 3

(c)
♠ 7 5 4
♡ J 5
◇ Q 4 2
♣ A Q 9 6 5

(d)
♠ K 5 4
♡ 6 2
◇ K 7 6 4
♣ Q 9 3 2

(e)
♠ A 9 5
♡ K 9 5
◇ K 7 6 4
♣ 10 9 5

(f)
♠ J 9 7 5
♡ A 2
◇ J 9 5 4
♣ Q 9 3

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

(a) Pass. Your no-trump response was a bare minimum. If partner can make game he should be able to employ some absolutely forcing bid rather than one asking you to bid again if you have extra values.

(b) Four hearts. You have well over a minimum in high cards and your lack of a spade stopper demands that you raise partner's suit rather than bid three no-trump.

(c) Four clubs. No reason not to show your own good suit since you have a better than minimum one no-trump response. With a fit in clubs, there's a possibility of slam or at any rate there may be an easier game than at four hearts.

(d) Three no-trump. Better than a minimum all unbid suits stopped, no support for partner's suit.

(e) Four hearts. Although you have a maximum no-trump, partner's rebid is a strong game urge without being a slam try.

(f) Three no-trump. Your low honors in the side suits are apt to be more valuable at no-trump. Your ace in partner's suit should insure that you will run his very probable six-card suit.

Steel Shares Show Weakness At Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Industrial losses ranged to more than a point Thursday as the stock markets here pulled moderate trading.

International Nickel lost 1¼ at 80¾ while Aluminium slipped ¾ to 38 and Hudson Bay fell ½ to 51.

Steel of Canada dropped ⅝ to 60⅝ while Dosco slipped ½ to 27 and Algoma eased ⅛ to 31⅛.

Inter-Provincial Pipe Lines fell 1⅜ to 47½, and in the refining group McColl lost 2 points at 70 and Canadian Oil dipped ⅜ to 34½.

Mines and oils were down. Steep Rock dropped a point to 14

Dividend Disappoints

TORONTO (CP)—The stock market dipped lower in moderately light trading.

Anglo Newfoundland Development led industrial losers with a 1% point decline on reduced dividend announcement. Dominion Steel and Foundries was off ¼ at 27, while about half a dozen other issues suffered ½ point losses.

Senior and base metals were fractionally lower in a solid line Hollinger maintained its ½ point gain at 28 but Falconbridge and Noranda lost fractionally. Lower prices mines eased.

Fargo remained strong in lower-priced western oils with a 60¢ set climb to $8.35. Other minor issues were off in a price range of up to 20 cents. Senior issues remained weak. Among the losers were Home Oil A with ¾ at 19¼ and Home Oil B with ⅝ at at 19⅜.

Support Near Close

NEW YORK (UP) — Stocks met support on somewhat increased volume in the afternoon trading after another decline in the first part of the session.

Most issues came back from their early lows established around mid-session. Some managed to register net gains, notably Chrysler which came back 1¾ points from its low. Other motors firmed.

Baltimore & Ohio made a substantial recovery in the rails. Steels firmed with Bethlehem and U.S. Steel leading. Lukens ran up more than a point net.

Oils recovered and were irregular late in the day. Chemicals regained part of early wide losses. Some utilities and special issues were strong. Many specials recorded losses running to 2 points. Tires generally were lower.

Fargo Goes Ahead

VANCOUVER—Only selected oils resisted the downward trend in a session in which the volume was slightly over the 50,000 mark.

Fargo at 8.30 and United at 3.70 were strong spots in the oils.

In mines Trojan dipped one cent to 31 cents, while Bethlehem was off 5 cents at 1.25.

Western Plywood was firm at $12½.

Grain Prices

CHICAGO (AP) — Profit-taking on the board of trade snipped back Wednesday's advances as the trade discounted fears of trouble in the Middle East.

Small speculative buying appeared in wheat but there was no evidence of any commercial demand for the bread grain.

WINNIPEG (CP)—Fairly active trade in flax marked activity on the Winnipeg grain exchange.

There were purchases by export houses and shippers with selling by international interests and U.S. accounts. Offerings were fairly liberal with hedging sales and other light offerings. Prices were irregular and showed an easier tone.

Some activity occurred in oats and American shippers were buyers. Hedges and other offerings were in line with demand.

Barley and rye trade was mostly light and local. Prices stayed in a narrow range.

Overnight export loadings of Canadian wheat included: United Kingdom 1,075,000, Japan 385,000, Germany 315,000, The Netherlands 140,000 and Belgium 40,000.

Hard Work May Save You

By EARL UBELL

There is the stevedore, lifting great bundles of goods with his physically hard ... his heart pumping enormous volumes of blood to keep his muscular arms and legs supplied with nourish-

book hour after hour. He works a desk all day. The heaviest thing he lifts is a telephone receiver. And if his heart beats fast it is only with the excitement of decisions that affects hundreds and thousands of dollars.

Which one of these two men is more likely to suffer a heart attack? Which one are you?

It are you somebody in between doing some physical labor under high-pitched psychological pressure?

At first glance the statistical studies tell you that if you are a sedentary executive or white collar worker you carry a greater risk of heart attack than the heavy laborer sitting at that swivel chair may do something to your arteries.

Take the case of the London bus drivers and conductors. The drivers suffered far more heart attacks twice as fast as the conductors who had to run up and down the steps of the double decker buses collecting three and four pence every time a passenger got aboard.

Dr. J. N. Morris who did this study also found that the post office London postmen have three-fourths the coronary artery disease as their fellow postal employees working from a chair back at the post office.

It is for these statistical rea-

Marathon Runner Would Balk At Schedule Set for Queen

By PATRICIA STEVENS

LONDON (WNS) — Towards the end of Queen Elizabeth's [illegible] next month, the women's press corps, limp with too much travel and too little sleep, is certain to bring up the old question "How does the Queen keep going?"

Whatever Lord Altrincham says about the Queen's "priggish schoolgirl" speeches, he cannot deny that the pretty 31-[illegible] Royal Family [illegible] is stamina.

She has demonstrated this repeatedly on her State tours of other countries and by her work schedule at home in Britain.

She starts her day at 8 a.m. by listening to the BBC news. She breakfasts at 8:30, plays with Prince Charles and Princess Anne for about an hour then carefully examines dispatch boxes which contain governmental documents and cables. She must sign many of these.

Her usual work day includes luncheons, receptions, investitures, perhaps opening a town hall or two, shaking a few dozen hands, waving at a few thousand people and changing her clothing three or four times.

QUEEN ELIZABETH
. . . fantastic stamina

About 10 p.m. she can go home to spend a short half hour with Prince Philip before she goes to an official dinner or another [illegible] ball. She likes to get to bed about half-past.

In an average day the Queen will work 10 hours, walk two miles, climb a thousand stairs. Her only day off is Sunday. Even then crowds, dogs and a few smiles and handwaves circle her church.

The Queen's tour of Australia early in 1954 was probably the toughest she has ever made. [illegible] with a few hundred strangers. She looked pale and tired.

Most royalty, after an hour's rest before a dinner bar quet the same day, she came up fresh and sparkling. On [illegible] she showed Britain in her attitude to take the worst beating with so much waving and hand shaking.

The Queen often masks her real tiredness with an unflinching pose that seems in built. From the age of four, Elizabeth was taught never to show boredom, she has even made com—never to fidget, even if often after a day of planting she had to stand still for two hours and curtsy and talk to [illegible]

Just as Elizabeth was taught poise as a small girl, she was also taught the value of physical fitness. She became a good woman. Gradually, she developed an almost unfeminine stamina, greatly helped by her naturally robust figure (she is 5 foot 6½ inches tall and has a 24-inch waist) and perfect health. The food at Buckingham Palace is plain and wholesome.

The exuberance of Prince Philip often helps the Queen to forget that she has an aching back and her feet are killing her.

When he sees the sparkle die in his wife's hazel-blue eyes he will lean across and whisper something, anything to make her smile.

The sameness of the Queen's duties does as much as anything to make them tiresome. When she and her husband have a complete day to themselves they try to do something completely different.

On a quiet Saturday during the Australian tour, the Duke piled his wife into a sports car and drove her deep into the country. She spent a hectic two hours riding a police horse through the scrub, then went trout fishing.

Last April she made a 78-hour visit to Paris. She spent 11 hours, 33 minutes travelling from ceremony to ceremony, 18 hours at official functions, 10 hours at dinners, 14 hours dressing and changing and 24 hours sleeping. That meant she was on duty for 53 hours, 33 minutes. She returned home to catch a few quick naps and pack for her Denmark visit.

On the night of Oct. 20—next month the Queen will attend an official dinner in Washington, then, still wearing her evening dress, she will board the overnight train for New York. Then comes the New York welcome along Fifth Avenue, an official luncheon, a visit to the United Nations, an elevator ride to the top of the Empire State, an official dinner, a formal ball. At midnight she will fly back to London.

A marathon runner would balk at a program like this, but the slender young Queen will get through it with a smile on her face. She has done it so often before.

Working Mothers Blamed

EDINBURGH, Scotland — A prominent sociologist has indicted working mothers as one possible cause of the post war boost in mental illness.

The British government's recent call for more women to join the labor force was fundamentally a short sighted policy, Professor Richard Eliot of the University of Edinburgh told the British National Conference on Social Work.

He forecast that the resulting drive in the long run will do more harm than good if it serves to increase adult hostilities in the children who become the victims of the system.

Professor Eliot, a child development expert, also mentioned divorce as another menace to young mental stability, and criticized his government for spending more on legal aid to divorce seekers than on marriage guidance courses "whose main function is the promotion of successful marriage."

He said that while compulsory education was generally desirable it created the danger of friction between home and school. This might lead to split discipline similar to that caused by quarreling parents, he warned.

A LOVELIER YOU

By Mary Sue Miller

Quick Hair Groomers: Never turn down an unexpected invitation just because your hair's a fright. It can be made presentable in no time with these groomers.

First freshen and sweeten by tackling cologne or liquid hair tonic on scalp and letting it air dry. To speed application use an eyedropper. Simply run it through your locks from hairline to crown at about two inch intervals.

Your next step is cleaning and polishing. For a good rich slide comb cheesecloth or gauze over your hairbrush bristles and stroke from crown to ends.

Lastly, dress your hair as smoothly as possible. Then dampen well with hair spray and immediately press waves and curls in place. After drying the effect is the next best thing to a complete "do."

RULE YOUR WAVES?

What's your hair problem? You will find a way to overcome it in my 15c page booklet RULE YOUR WAVES. Advice includes beauty treatments for oily, dry, and normal hair; ways to manage unruly locks, how to add color and highlights, tips on cutting permanent and styling, grooming tricks. Write me in care of this newspaper for your copy, enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20c in coin.

Hair Color Adds Glamor To New Fall Fashions

By MARY FRAN BURKE

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian woman who plans her fall fashions strategy with a knowing eye is advised to try temporary hair colors for added glamor.

"Her whole appearance will take on a fresh look," says Gene Ziotek, Toronto hairdresser.

"Any woman can make autumn fashions in taupes, reds and dramatic blacks, most becoming outfits by pampering her hair until it has an added sheen and gloss."

EASILY REMOVED

Rinses also add new life and brightness to the hair. And in applying hair colors it is to be remembered that they can be removed with one shampoo.

The rinses and tints on the market today can really be called "hair cosmetics." Besides, Mr. Ziotek said, they hide hair-color faults.

Blondes usually have trouble with their hair in their early teens when the golden lights start to darken.

"Their common complaint is 'mousey hair,'" said Mr. Ziotek. He recommends brightening the hair with reddish rinses for a strawberry blonde look. Pink or blue shaded rinses will also solve the problem.

For "poor" hair when no amount of brushing or doses of vitamin B has helped, Mr. Ziotek suggests golden rinses.

"Hair will pick up a gloss hitherto lost and make skin seem creamier at the same time," he said.

With the coming of fall many women find that months spent under the hot sun have left their hair with either a brassy look or an uneven color.

Mr. Ziotek says a rinse, one or two shades darker than the natural hair color, is the solution. This will even out the color, blend the streaks and take away that brassy look that every woman hates.

"Even those odd strands of grey hair will disappear," he said. However, for women who complain of "yellow streaks" in their grey hair, he suggests a light platinum or slate rinse. If you are troubled with faded ends, apply a hair color to the ends using swabs of cotton. Mr. Ziotek cautions care when applying to keep rinses away from the rest of the hair or the results could be disastrous ending with three different colors.

"A plus look can be had by highlighting the hair with a variety of rinses . . . lavender, amber and blue colors highlight black hair, blue in a variety of shades and platinum for blondes.

What's Cooking! By Frances Thompson

If it were not so comical this situation might be slightly embarrassing for me I mean, not for you. Possibly you will recall that several weeks ago I put out an SOS for a recipe for Oregon Grape Wine. I had never heard of it. The request came from a mere male who incidentally never even acknowledged our mutual efforts on his behalf!

Anyway, he certainly started something. Subsequently, in all innocence, I ran a recipe for home-made Apple Cider remember? From there, still in an innocent way, a few wine recipes appeared in this space. Well really girls, aside from reducing hints, nothing seems to have aroused so much interest as this art of home-made wine making. What goes on in this wonderful Island? Are you all wine bibbers?'

Now let's be serious for the sake of our very many readers who have not the slightest interest in this age-old craft. Mrs H. A. H. explained to me that so often fallen fruit was just wasted because she and her friends did not know what to do with it hence the recent cider recipe Mrs A B was delighted to find another use for the [illegible] this time of year meaning blackberries, for instance. What Mrs. W. G. remarked so truly "well, after all, Christmas is coming up. And we have to make these wines well in advance." Somehow it's hard to think of Christmas in this lovely belated summer weather but it's true enough, one has so to do.

So in order to keep all readers happy (an almost impossible task) I think we'll change the subject completely for the time being anyway. But if anybody wants further help on this wine making subject you know how to get in touch with me through this newspaper.

Say talking of Christmas will some kind soul help out on this query? A certain Mrs W. F. wants to know how to make Yule Logs from magazines. I think she said. Apparently they should be made in September. Frankly I told her I had not the vaguest idea but that I would ask you. Will somebody help me?

Not unnaturally, living in this fish-rich part of the world (what a ghastly choice of words) many of us have fish dinners on a Friday regardless of religion. And many of us find ourselves, in consequence, with an [illegible] of left-over fish. My first suggestion is for a simple little fishy dish. The second is more fancy and might well be used if you happen to be entertaining over this forthcoming warm week end.

FISH SCALLOP WITH VEGETABLES

(4 to 6 servings)

One cup sliced cooked potatoes, 1 cup sliced cooked carrots, 1 medium onion, very finely chopped, 1 cup flaked cooked fish, salt and pepper, 2 cups medium white sauce, ½ cup dry breadcrumbs. Now you can add anything to that to "pep it up" such as a pinch of your favorite herb, tarragon perhaps or marjoram. As so often said, this is merely a basic recipe.

Arrange alternating layers of potatoes, carrots, onions and flaked fish in a greased casserole. Season each layer with salt, pepper and the herb of your choice. Pour the medium white sauce over all, adding a little grated cheese if liked. Sprinkle top with breadcrumbs and dot with butter or margarine. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees about 30 minutes) until the top is nicely browned.

Next comes our fancy suggestion.

PARTY FISH MOLD

One and a half tablespoons unflavored gelatin; ¼ cup cold water, 2 cups flaked, cooked fish, ½ cup diced unpeeled apple (red skinned); 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 cup diced celery, 1 cup diced pineapple, fresh or the canned diced variety, drained, ½ cup sliced stuffed olives, 1 cup mayonnaise. Soak gelatin in cold water. Season the fish to your liking. Sprinkle the apple with lemon juice. Combine fish, apple, celery, pineapple and olives in large mixing bowl. Dissolve gelatin by placing it over boiling water and then combine it with the mayonnaise. Blend it with the fish mixture mixing well. Pour the whole thing into a 1 quart jelly mold rinsed in cold water. A mold in the shape of a fish is ideal if you are lucky enough to have one. Chill until firm. Unmold on to salad greens.

TRICK OF THE DAY

"For pickling time" says Miss L. D. "after peeling onions rub dry mustard well into the hands. Rinse with cold water, no soap. There'll be no onion odor."

TV TALK

By Bruce Lowther

TV net works and stations in the United States scored before-taxes profits of $190,000,000 last year, a huge 28-per-cent increase from 1956.

Figures from the U.S. Federal Communications Commission show that the three big networks and the 15 stations they own outright had 45 per cent of this total, about the same as the year before. UHF stations (above channel 13) lost a total of $1,900,000, one-third the 1955 loss. Number of UHF outlets, incidentally, has dropped from 125 two years ago to 95 now.

Club Date, a night club-type show replacing Show Stoppers, starts on channel 2 tonight. Otherwise, there isn't much of anything, except for Tonight, of course, and two or three movies.

"Best way to wake him up is to turn off the ball game."

Add to yesterday's story about the first pay-TV

The movies "Pajama Game" and "Mississippi Gambler" were fed by cable to 300 TV-sets in Bartlesville, Okla. (population 28,000) alternately from 1 p.m. to midnight. There were no breaks for commercials; installation fee is about $100 and monthly fee is $9.50

It was just like the early days of TV for the [illegible] set owners, who found themselves very popular with their neighbors. A switch is attached to each set so that viewers can turn back to regular TV if they want.

TV BITS: ABC is planning a big weekly dramatic series for 1958-59. Budget for 39 weeks will be $4,000,000 . . . ABC has decided to follow Disneyland this season with a western, Tombstone Territory. Star is Pat Conway, grandson of Francis X. Bushman.

Films of the screen's "great lovers," including those torrid scenes from Playhouse 90's "Winter Dreams," will be shown on "The Changing Ways of Love," the Perelman outline of love from 1920 to 1957 on Seven Lively Arts on CBS Nov. 3 . . . In the fall of 1958, NBC will show a 90-minute spectacular about show business in Japan. It's being filmed there now, with Gene Kelly as host, at a cost of $300,000 . . . Championship bowling will move from NBC to ABC soon to be shown at 8.30 Sundays . . . Bing Crosby still refuses a TV show but has agreed to a weekly half-hour show "live" on CBS Sundays, right after Jack Benny.

Also TV holdouts are Sophia Loren and Cary Grant. Recent offers of $35,000 each for brief appearances didn't even work.

Today's Best

2:00 p.m.—Pianist-comic Stan Freeman and rubber-faced Kaye Ballard are among Garry Moore's guests.

8:30—Gene Kelly as a one-armed tramp in a good re-run on Schlitz Playhouse (channel 11).

Daily Astrology

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1957

Today's Quotation: "Private opinion is weak, but public opinion is almost omnipotent."—Henry Ward Beecher.

Friday For Everyone: Make headway, particularly where savings, resourcefulness are concerned. Benefit through the resources and contacts of others. Build on a practical, slow-but-sure basis.

Look For Your Birthdate and Birthsign Below.

March 21 to April 19—(Aries)—Benefit from congenial ties. Better commercial, monetary position; post mail.

April 20 to May 20—(Taurus)—Run your eye over today's ads that may indicate better buys — simply commercial tips.

May 21 to June 20—(Gemini)—Enjoy your mail or a change of scene; make headway with plans, future arrangements.

June 21 to July 22—(Cancer)—Take care of some bills, monetary records; secure payment of debts. Enlist required aid.

July 23 to Aug. 22 (Leo)—Step down and let teammates, others take the lead. Play along; don't ask for a star role today.

Aug. 23 to Sept. 22—(Virgo)—Devote yourself to job, serious pursuits. Heighten your ability to stick to business, get things done.

Sept. 23 to Oct. 22—(Libra)—Confide in intimates, those you hold dear. Let them help you make good on ideas.

Oct. 23 to Nov. 21—(Scorpio)—Focus your mind on business at hand; enlist the services of older persons, those who bear weight.

Nov. 22 to Dec. 21—(Sagittarius)—Others are subject to whims; act on your own to cover ground. Get those letters in the mail!

Dec. 22 to Jan. 19—(Capricorn)—Put your time to good use. Effect some good buys; save a dollar here and there.

Jan. 20 to Feb. 18—(Aquarius)—You hold a winning hand; press your advantages with tact, method, determination.

Feb. 19 to March 20—(Pisces)—Find a quiet retreat; ponder weighty affairs or bring them to some conclusion. Ask assistance if needed.

Planning Ahead—Good for entertaining, sociability, etc.: Sept. 6, 17, 21, 23, 26, 28.

Flagpole Tenders Due Soon

Tenders for shaping and erection of a new Beacon Hill Park flagpole are expected to be opened and considered in the next few days at city hall.

The log for the new 147-foot pole was sent to the city recently by Mayo Lumber Co. of Baldi, a donation in memory of Mayo Singh, well-known lumberman and philanthropist who gave the city the present flagpole in the park. The present pole is rotting at the base.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

1. Sealed tenders will be received up to 3 o'clock, September 17th, 1957, by the Deputy Minister of Recreation and Conservation, Victoria, B.C., for the construction of a Toilet and Change House in Shawnee Lake Park situated at a point approximately 55 miles northeast of Kamloops and 5 miles west of Celista, B.C., on the north shore of the west arm of Shuswap Lake.
2. Plans, specifications and conditions of tender may be obtained from the Government Agent, Court House, Vancouver, B.C., or the Government Agent, Court House, Victoria, B.C., or the Government Agent, Court House, Kamloops, B.C., or the Government Agent, Court House, Penticton, B.C., or the Government Agent, Court House, Kelowna, B.C., or the Government Agent, Salmon Arm, B.C., or the Provincial Parks Branch, 844 Michigan Street, Victoria, B.C., on deposit of Twenty-Five ($25.00) Dollars which will be refunded, except in the case of the successful tenderer, upon return of plans, etc., in good condition within thirty (30) days.
3. Each tender must be accompanied by a certified cheque on a chartered bank of Canada, made payable to the Minister of Recreation and Conservation, for ten per cent (10%) of the amount of the tender, which sum shall be forfeited if the party tendering declines to enter into the contract when called upon to do so.
4. Tenders must be made out on the forms supplied, signed with the actual signature of the tenderer and enclosed in the envelope furnished. These envelopes are not to bear any identifying marks.
5. No tender will be accepted or considered that contains an escalator clause or any other qualifying conditions.
6. The lowest, or any tender not necessarily accepted.
7. Further information and site inspection may be arranged by contacting the Resident Engineer, D. A. Shaw, Provincial Parks Branch, 844 Michigan Street, Victoria, B.C. (Telephone 3-8111, Local 436.)

Ford Announces:

Monarch Doomed By New Edsel

Ford Motor Company announced yesterday that it will discontinue production of the Monarch automobile when the new Edsel goes on sale next week.

Peter Whittlesey, general manager of National Motors in Victoria, said the Edsels arrived here last Friday and will be on sale Wednesday.

"We have Monarchs en route right now and should have them on sale for some time. Parts and service will be available for the cars as long as necessary," Mr. Whittlesey said.

Ford Motor Company president Rhys M. Sale said the Edsels have been coming off the production line at Oakville, Ont., since mid-July.

Mr. Sale forecast that the automobile market would continue buoyant next year. "I see no reason to anticipate any less market than in 1957," he said.

He said prices of all cars would likely be 3 to 5 per cent higher this year but expressed cautious optimism that the Conservative government would remove at least part of the 10 per cent federal excise tax.

Engineers

Victoria Locals 'Okayed'

Victoria locals of the International Union of Operating Engineers are "okay" to the Victoria Labor Council, although the international was recently booted from the Canadian Labor Congress for "raiding."

This was the meaning of a suggestion by the VLC executive to the CLC that locals of the operating engineers should be allowed to affiliate to the CLC providing they pay per capita dues direct to the labor organization.

This suggestion was ratified by the VLC membership Wednesday.

However, acting on instructions of the Canadian labor body, the Victoria locals of the operating engineers have been expelled from the local labor council.

Their business agent, Clifton Parker, resigned from his offices with the Victoria Labor Council. Jack McKenzie, IWA delegate, was elected to replace him as chairman of the council's education committee, and T. K. Willis, shipwrights' delegate, will take over as chairman of the council's centennial committee.

Dosco Directors Oppose Merger

HALIFAX (CP)—Letters indicating their intention to fight sale of the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation to A. V. Roe Canada Ltd. have been mailed to shareholders by two Nova Scotia directors of Dosco.

The letters signed by financier R. A. Jodrey and grocery chain president Frank H. Sobey, are reported to contain a proxy form appointing either of the directors to vote shareholders' stock at a proposed special meeting.

The letters say the price being offered for the giant industrial complex by the British-controlled aviation company is "too low."

Avro has offered 1¼ shares of Avro common stock and $10.25 in cash for each share of Dosco.

Council Briefs

Royal Commission Urged on Merger

A royal commission on amalgamation of Greater Victoria municipalities was suggested yesterday by Ald. J. Donald Smith.

City council accepted an invitation from Saanich to join in an intermunicipal study of ways and means of investigating amalgamation, integration of services, and a metropolitan form of government. The mayor will appoint the city's two representatives.

"It's a step in the right direction," said Ald. Smith, but he added that he thought the only way to settle the question once and for all was "to place it before the people in December, asking them to endorse a royal commission paid for on a per-capita basis. I think the provincial government would pay one-third. That, I think, is the only way to solve the problem or get it down in perspective where we can see it."

Council decided to take no action to fill the school board vacancy left by resignation of H. B. Whitfield, who has gone to Duncan.

Mayor Percy Scurrah suggested that filling the vacancy for three months was not worth the cost of a by-election.

* * *

Ald. Hugh Ramsay, "not trying to be critical, but just sincerely interested," persuaded council to call for a meeting with the arena commission to discuss dwindling arena revenue.

For the first time, the arena commission this year was unable to turn over to the city the full $25,000 it is supposed to contribute toward retirement of the debt incurred in building the arena.

Council asked the fire wardens' committee to bring in a recommendation on appointment of a successor to Fire Chief Frank Briers, who will retire at the end of the year, so that the successor can be brought into the planning of a new headquarters fire hall.

* * *

Purchase of the Garbally Road site of the Ramsay & Adams Foundry, recently destroyed by fire, for $30,000 was approved. The property adjoins the city's Garbally yard, and acquiring it will allow the city to consolidate operations in one yard.

Courtroom Parade

Convicted Lawyer May Appeal Case

A retired Saskatchewan lawyer, convicted in city police court yesterday of passing on the left when it was not safe to do so, gave notice to Magistrate Henry C. Hall that he might appeal.

Fredrik J. Knudsen, now living at 140 Olive, was fined $10.

Police said Knudsen, on Aug. 4, passed a row of 25 or 30 cars on Dallas Road, driving on the left-hand side of the road to do so. Oncoming cars, they said, had to swing to the curb to avoid Knudsen's vehicle. Their own patrol car was in the line of cars which he passed.

Accused, who said he did not see the police car, told the court the line of cars did not appear to be moving, so he drove "at 10 or 12 miles an hour" past them.

While passing, he said, there were only two cars parked on the left side of the road, and only one or two coming in the opposite direction which got by him without trouble.

Right-hand wheels of accused's car were near the centre line of the road.

Accused also said, and called a witness to confirm, that his visibility ahead was extensive and safe at all times.

William Klingsat, 488 Swinford, pleaded guilty through counsel to a charge of selling liquor unlawfully through a taxi firm.

Police said one bottle was purchased from accused, and a search disclosed a number of other bottles in a suitcase in a cab. Klingsat was fined $300, or in default three months at hard labor.

In Saanich police court yesterday afternoon Roy Joseph Cain, 649 Agnes, previously fined for impaired driving, appeared for disposition of his driver's licence.

Magistrate Hall, with the understanding that Cain required his licence for his livelihood, accepted accused's undertaking not to drive except for business purposes for one year.

Clothing Workers' Complaint:

Well-Unionized B.C. Buys 'Scab' Clothing

Although British Columbia is the most highly unionized province in Canada, residents of the province buy a tremendous quantity of "scab" clothing, George Droneck, business agent for the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, Local 178, told Victoria Labor Council this week.

About 20 members of the local are the latest union to affiliate with the local labor council.

Clothing manufacturers in Eastern Canada who employ union labor find they can sell most of their production in the east and don't bother to sell in the west, Mr. Droneck said. But manufacturers hiring non-union workers find a poor market in the east and sell in the west.

Mr. Droneck, who is first vice-president of the union label committee of the Canadian Labor Congress, advised the delegates: "Any garment without a union label isn't for you."

Earl Allen, chairman of the labor council union label committee, stated that this is union buying week in Canada.

"I would urge you to ask for articles bearing the union label," he stated. "In doing so you will be supporting organized labor."

All-Sooke Day Celebrations Bring $858

SOOKE — Sum of $858 was cleared by the Sooke Community Association from All-Sooke Day celebrations this year.

Profits from the Gyro festival and Sooke salmon barbecue were used to pay for construction of portable stands on the community-owned Sooke flats.

A work bee will be held Sunday to put the stands and barbecue tables into winter storage.

A Real Champion

Back Port Council

Island Ratepayers Support E & N Service to Albernis

Vancouver Island Ratepayers' Association has added its voice to the protest by Port Alberni council over discontinuance of E & N passenger train service between Parksville and the Alberni.

The council has asked Transport Minister George Hees to delay action pending an investigation of responsibilities assumed by the railway when the E & N land grants were made.

Port Alberni council contends that if the service is discontinued the E & N should forfeit some of the privileges bestowed by the government.

George E. Bonner, ratepayers' president, said the association has sent a wire to the federal government asking for continuation of service.

Ratepayers, he said, view "with alarm and concern" federal government failure to protect "the agreement made in trust with the E & N Railway Company on behalf of the people of Vancouver Island."

At Elk Falls

Plank Slips, Injures Man

CAMPBELL RIVER — Kenneth Sherry, aged about 50, of Langley, suffered severe head cuts yesterday when struck by a plank which slipped from some scaffolding at the Elk Falls paper mill.

Sherry was employed on construction of a second paper machine at the mill. He was taken to Lourdes hospital for treatment in the new Elk Falls company ambulance, being used for the first time since its arrival at the mill last weekend.

Veterans Form Guard For Pearkes at Duncan

DUNCAN — Forty Legionnaires, veterans of the First and Second World Wars, formed a guard of honor for Defence Minister George R. Pearkes at the opening of the Cowichan Exhibition yesterday.

Mr. Pearkes said he felt very greatly honored that so many veterans turned out. It had been expected that two of his former buddies from the First World War would have been on parade to honor him but illness kept them away. Alf Castle, formerly street superintendent for the city of Duncan, and Ernest Palmer, served with Mr. Pearkes at Ypres.

The opening crowd was driven inside by rain, but there was a large gathering in the main agricultural hall to hear the opening remarks by the defence minister. Archie Stevenson, president of the Cowichan Exhibition announced that this is the last fair that will be held in the present agricultural grounds, as the show will move to its own property adjoining the community centre for the 1958 fair.

This is the fifth fair that the show has held since gaining Class B status, and the exhibition and entries are steadily improving.

In the flower show results, first to come in, Mrs. T. V. Sandys-Wunsch, always a prominent exhibitor and winner, captured 15 firsts, 10 seconds and two thirds.

Other winners in the flower classes were: Mrs. J. Cotsford, Shawnigan Lake, two firsts, one second; Mrs. Mary Petrie, Duncan, one first, two seconds, two thirds; Mrs. George Meyer, Duncan, two firsts, three seconds.

Mrs. A. A. Mutter, three firsts, one second; Mrs. J. L. Cresswell, Cowichan Station, one first, one second; Isabel Carlton, Duncan, a junior, three firsts.

Mrs. J. W. Parkinson, Duncan, one first, three seconds; Glen Stillwell, Shawnigan Lake, one first; Mrs. Francis Armand, Duncan, one first, and Mrs. B. Lyons, Victoria, two firsts.

The fair will continue today and Saturday.

Fair Casualty Caught Heel In Ride Gear

DUNCAN — Bill Jones, Duncan teen-ager, suffered severe injuries to the heel of one foot when he became entangled in the gears of a small merry-go-round at the Cowichan Exhibition yesterday afternoon.

The machine, intended only for small children, was unattended at the time.
